Clemency Granted Savannah Woman Draws Mayor's Fire.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Dec. 9.—(P)—Attacking Governor Talmadge for what he termed "unbecomingly pardons and paroles," Mayor Thomas Gamble, of Savannah, today said "political friends ought not to be permitted to influence" clemency actions.

Commenting on the mayor's statement, Talmadge, whose clemency practices were assailed in the last gubernatorial campaign, said in Atlanta: "Somewhere I have read: 'Let him who is without sin cast the first stone.'"

Answering critics during the campaign, Talmadge said: "The 'pardon racket' is going to keep right on running as long as I am Governor." He said the granting of executive clemency was a matter for the Governor's heart and conscience.

Mayor Gamble's criticism was directed principally at the action of the

BIG FARM GAIN SEEN IN GEORGIA BY BROWN

Income Has Tripled in Three Years, Agent Tells Bankers.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 9.—(P)—Georgia farmers not only "are making a living," but are "making money at the same time," Harry L. Brown, director of extension for the State College of Agriculture, told a group of Georgia bankers here today.

"While the income of Georgia farmers has tripled during the past three years," Brown said, "the state has also become more nearly self-sustaining than in many years."

Prominent Georgia bankers meeting here today for discussions at one of a series of meetings sponsored by the Georgia Bankers' Association heard Brown's talk.

The director said the acreage devoted to food and feed crops has risen from four to six million acres in Georgia during the past five years. He praised the contribution of bankers to the live-at-home program, and urged them to aid in promoting a system of record-keeping by farmers so they "might be able to judge which enterprises they are carrying on are proving profitable."

Mr. Brown, member of the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' Association, of Madison, Wis., another speaker, emphasized the importance of soil conservation.

Our interests are mutual," he said, "and we must cooperate with state and federal agencies in reducing losses from erosion."

Along this line, a paper by H. Lane Young, Atlanta, and chairman of the agricultural commission of the American Bankers' Association, importance of bankers "teaming-up" with farmers and of a soil improvement program was stressed.

Mr. Young was reported ill. His paper was read by Mr. Otis.

"Our interests are mutual," said Mr. Young's paper. "As long as capital overreaches for profits, labor overreaches for wages, and the public overreaches for food, each will tend to destroy the other."

E. B. Peabody, Augusta banker, was another speaker on the program. In his paper on future money changes in management, he said bankers for the past several years "are holding large surplus funds uninvested and returns on invested funds are now at a minimum."

For that reason, he said, banks must essentially "derive new sources of income through new loan channels and adequate remuneration for services rendered" and "decrease expenses by improved methods of operation."

Lee S. Trimble, vice president and cashier of the Georgia Railroad Bank of Augusta, told the bankers the way to "get the government out of business" is to anticipate and render the services that federal agencies are giving.

He said there is evidence that public favor for government activities "is passing" and that there are definite signs that economic conditions are "improving rapidly."

FARM VALUES INCREASE MILLIONS IN LOWNDES

AAA Program Causes Big Gain Since 1933, Agent Reports.

VALDOSTA, Ga., Dec. 9.—(P)—County Agent H. E. Miller estimates the AAA programs have added $1,000,000 to Lowndes county farm values since 1933.

Miller, reporting to the county commissioners, credited the Agricultural Adjustment Administration with improved farm conditions. He said the farming outlook in Lowndes county was the best he had ever known.

"Total rental and parity payments on cotton and tobacco crops by the AAA approximates $200,000," Miller said, "total dollar and cents value of cotton and tobacco crops, taking into account the increased prices of commodities since 1933, is approximately $1,000,000."

Reviewing the work of his office, Miller reported $75 tobacco contracts, 1,008 cotton contracts and 40 corn-hog contracts were in force during the year.

He urged that the AAA program be continued to assure prosperity in the county.

Also commended was the "live-at-home" program which Miller urged all farmers to practice. Land owners were called upon to further soil erosion work to protect their acres.

AFRICAN WAR SEEN AS WORLD THREAT

Speaker at Athens Says Grave Results To Follow Conflict.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 9.—(P)—The Italo-Ethiopian struggle threatens two continents, Kenneth Meyers, world traveler and lecturer, said at the University of Georgia today.

"For Africa as a whole," Meyers said, "the consequences are grave. If Italy wins, the whole continent will rise in protest against the loss of integrity by a free part of Africa at the hands of an European aggressor."

"If Ethiopia succeeds in defending herself, the African will have a new sense of power which may result in a series of revolts. Weak nations like Belgium and Portugal that have large colonies in Africa would have difficulty in holding on against concerted native action."

League of Nations intervention, on the other hand, threatens to transfer the scene of warfare to Europe, Meyers said, adding:

"In the end, Mussolini to save his face, may forget Haile Selassie and rattle sabers with King George of Britain, for Britain is the most insistent of the League members. She has important interests in Ethiopia."

Meyers, who recently witnessed war preparations in the land of Sheba and who was brought to the university by the Institute of Public Affairs, said "Ethiopia in her natural defenses has an ally that has never failed her in the past."

Meyers said that so far the Italians have occupied little more than 12,500 square miles of Ethiopia's 350,000.

FATHER IS ARRESTED FOR BURNING HIS CHILD

Other Charges of Mistreatment Against Infant Revealed by Mother.

JENKINS, Ky., Dec. 9.—(P)—Accused of disciplining his 9-month-old son by poking his feet in the face, Robert Mahan, 25, was held in jail here tonight, his wife was reported staying with her people and the baby was receiving daily treatment at Jenkins hospital.

Dr. E. J. Stanfield, assistant surgeon at the hospital, said he first treated the child yesterday. It was brought here by the mother, Mrs. Mahan, whom Dr. Stanfield said was about 18 years old and came of a family of high standing in the hills. Dr. Stanfield said the baby, Thomas, had two teeth missing from its lower jaw, ulcers on its feet, back, head and left hand and cuts at the corners of its mouth.

Deputy Town Marshal H. M. Dotson said Mrs. Mahan swore to the warrant on which Mahan was arrested and that she told him her husband had given the child all his hurts. The warrant charged cruel and inhuman treatment of an infant. Mahan, who is a coal loader, denied the charges.

Meyers said that so far the Italians have occupied little more than 12,500 square miles of Ethiopia's 350,000.

PRISONER SETS FIRE TO MATTRESS IN CELL

A. J. Sater, 34, held in city jail on a charge of drunkenness, made it 'hotter' for himself yesterday by setting fire to his mattress and then allegedly attacking Turnkey Roy Wall when the officer entered the cell to extinguish the blaze.

SAFER AUTO MEASURES SOUGHT BY ROAD BODY

Officials Unite To Confer on Plans To Eliminate Highway Fatalities.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Quick elimination of highway conditions endangering motorists' lives was called for today by Thomas H. MacDonald, Washington, D. C., chief of the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

MacDonald told the American Association of State Highway Officials, gathered at the Miami Biltmore Hotel here for its annual convention, road safety measures lagged far behind those for rail and boat travel.

"Improvements that may be undertaken quickly and that should prove effective in eliminating dangerous conditions," MacDonald said, "include placing of non-skid surfaces, clearing of obstructions to lengthen sight distances, elimination of hazards at points where accidents have occurred, if due to faults of the road, and the immediate marking of all curves for their speed of travel."

More stringent laws to combat the mounting death toll from highway accidents was urged by A. W. Brandt, New York State Highway Commissioner and president of the association.

Of the 38,000 persons killed in traffic accidents last year, Brandt said most of them resulted from "speed and reckless driving." He suggested "stiff jail sentences," revocation of law violators' operation licenses and education as the best means of stopping accidents.

Automobile accidents last year cost $1,570,000,000, Brandt estimated, for wage losses, medical expenses, insurance and property damage.

CALLANDER, Ont., Dec. 9.—In the winter dusk, with all the movie men and photographers away, Mr. and Mrs. Olivia Dionne quietly visited their quintuplet daughters in Dufresne hospital.

In her usual rocking chair beside the Dionne farmhouse kitchen stove, knitting a gray sock for her husband, Mrs. Dionne told the correspondent that they found their five little ones all ready for a long winter's nap.

"We picked them up and they threw their arms about our necks," said the mother. "Yes, they know us, even if we aren't with them all the time."

The mother said she still "felt very sad" that the whole family was not together.

Death Takes Holiday--No One Killed in This Crash

Coming towards Atlanta early yesterday afternoon, this car ran off the road as its driver attempted to pass over a railroad bridge between here and Marietta and just north of the Chattahoochee river bridge, crashed through brush and trees for about 50 yards and turned over several times. Herbert Mickell, of Detroit, Mich., was driving, accompanied by Mrs. Mickell. At the Marietta hospital he was said to be "shaken up."

His wife was admitted to the hospital with a scalp wound, though attendants said her condition was not serious. Mickell said he did not know what caused the accident. He said he was driving about 35 miles an hour and was not crowded off the highway by another driver. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

WITH IMPEACHMENT

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Impeachment threatened Governor Olin Johnston tonight on the eve of a special legislative session he summoned to create a new state highway commission.

This action, unprecedented in South Carolina, was proposed when the executive retained military control of the highway department despite a state supreme court decision terminating his use of troops "unconstitutional."

Representative Lonnie Causey, of Horry, 24-year-old law student, proposed impeachment this afternoon with a statement that the legislature otherwise had "absolutely no assurance its highway enactments would be carried out unless they meet with the views of the Governor."

EIGHT CONVICTS FLEE
WASHINGTON PRISON

WALLA WALLA, Wash., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Eight convicts tunneled under the walls of the Washington state penitentiary and escaped during the night, Warden John McCauley reported today.

One of them was recaptured, but the other seven were at large, probably riding in two cars stolen shortly after the escape of the prisoners was discovered. One of the fugitives was armed with a pistol, the warden said.

DESPONDENT FATHER KILLS SELF OVER SON

City Watchman Had Given
Bond for Youth Shortly
Before Suicide.

Said by his wife to have been despondent over the arrest of his son on a police charge of "drunk on the street," George Evans, 55, city watchman, shot and fatally wounded himself early yesterday morning in a bedroom of his home at 614 Berne street, police reported.

He died at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at Grady hospital. The bullet had entered his left temple.

Evans went to police headquarters after he got off from work at the Moreland avenue rock quarry early yesterday morning and posted $7 bond for his son, Dott Evans, 22, police said. He then went to his home and retired, only to rise a short time later.

"I think I'll end it all," his wife quoted him as saying, police reported. A moment later Mrs. Evans heard a shot and rushed into his room. She found him lying on the floor. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Blanchard Brothers.

Carl Hubert Wilson, 22, of R. F. D. No. 1, Dunwoody, Ga., wounded himself in the left arm yesterday in his home with his father's pistol, his parents reported to police.

He had been released from Fulton tower under bond on a charge of fighting a short time before he went home. Wilson was taken to Grady hospital and placed under police guard at his father's request, officers reported. His condition was said to be not serious.

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE, 2 SONS AND HIMSELF

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 9.—(AP)—Charles A. Cobb, 41, today killed his wife, his two sons and himself, because, he said in a note, he could no longer stand the heavy debt burden that faced him.

Cobb was found dead in his automobile. Beside him was his hunting dog. Monoxide gas conducted into the car through a tube attached to the exhaust pipe had killed both.

Police, finding the Cobb home locked, smashed in a door and discovered the bodies of Mrs. Cobb and the boys, Robert, 12, and Charles Jr., 11. The mother and her sons lay dead in separate bedrooms.

Safe Driving Pledge

In the interest of accident prevention and safer conditions on the highways and in co-operation with the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, I am making the following pledge:

1. To drive at moderate speed and on own side of road.
2. Not to pass cars on curves or hills
3. To stop at stop signs.
4. Not to jump traffic lights.
5. In city traffic to be particularly watchful for pedestrians stepping into the line of traffic from parked cars.
6. Always to give hand signals showing my intention of turning to the left, to the right, or stopping, and not to leave the curb from a parked position without giving a signal.
7. To be fair to other drivers in all respects and to refrain from reckless driving.

The Safety Council of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

Fill out and mail this pledge to the Safety Council of The Atlanta Constitution, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope for return of windshield stickers.

DRIVERS RESPONSIBLE FOR MOST ACCIDENTS

city intersections. The next greatest percentage occur between city street intersections, with highway accidents third. But remember that accidents can happen anywhere, at rural intersections, driveways, curves, railroad crossings and bridge crossings.

Do most accidents occur from turning, skidding, backing, slowing down or stopping? They do not. Most of them—78.7 per cent—occur when the driver is going straight ahead, when the road is open and the way is clear, he thinks. Drivers involved in these accidents do not take into consideration the possibility of an emergency which is always ahead.

Most in Clear Weather.
Weather and road conditions play a large part in accidents resulting in persons killed and injured, but not the way one might think. Fog, rain and snow account for a comparatively few of these catastrophes. Clear weather drivers account for 54.3 per cent.

Dry roads do not mean safe driving either, with 73.9 per cent of all accidents occurring on dry roads and streets that have a dry surface. The human element again. Drivers are often lulled into a false sense of security by good conditions.

The entire face of the clock is smeared with the blood of useless accidents. The period from 1 to 6 o'clock in the morning accounts for 9.2 per cent of all accidents. The greatest single hour for accidents is from 5 to 6 o'clock at night, with the hour from 7 to 8 o'clock coming next. These hours, and all hours, are the times to drive carefully.

Age of Crash Drivers.
Over 75 per cent of drivers involved in accidents resulting in death and injuries were between 25 and 64 years of age. These are the mature, experienced and "wise" drivers. Motorists between 18 and 24 years of age come next with 22.4 per cent.

Saturday is the big day for accidents, with Sunday following close behind. These are the days when motorists are usually pleasure-bent, going nowhere in particular, to be there at no particular time, but always in a hurry. Death and injuries often cause an unforeseen delay. And the fact that it is unforeseen always causes the death and injuries. Careful driving, day in and day out, is the best insurance against accidents.

These are cold statistics, compiled with unbiased and scientific methods. But they were supplied by the heat of haste, in the blood of human life, by the hand of careless drivers.

One more encounter with statistics, please. In 1934 there were 38,000 people killed on the streets and highways in the United States. This year, at the present rate of increase, more than 40,000 of our citizens will meet death, suddenly and horribly, in useless motor vehicle accidents.

That is something to think about. It is coming close home to you. Drive carefully!

Within the city limits of Atlanta alone, five persons were killed during the past week-end. Automobiles, wrecked and demolished, dot the streets and highways all over Georgia as mute testimony of the week-end carnage of dead and seriously injured. People see these piles of twisted steel and broken glass and some of them think. Others drive carelessly on until such a catastrophe overtakes them.

Monday always brings The Constitution Safety Council a large number of Safe Driving pledge signers. The ghastly spectacle of week-end wrecks impress drivers more than words or statistics can ever hope to do. And the same and thinking people of Georgia are ready to pledge themselves to observe the seven safe driving rules of the Safety campaign.

Pledge yourself in the name of humanity today. Elsewhere in this issue appears a printed Safe Driving pledge blank. Clip it out, sign it and mail it to the Safety Council, Atlanta Constitution, stamped self-addressed envelope. You will be sent two attractive pledge signer stickers. Their presence on the front and rear windows of your car show the world that you regard human life more than selfishness, safety more than speed.

ALABAMA REFUSED EXCISE TAX ON GAS

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 9.—(AP)—The state of Alabama was served a United States district court restraining order today preventing it from collecting $1,600,000 in excise tax from the Texas Company on gasoline sold to United States agencies in the state.

The decision was rendered by a three-judge court which heard the case at the request of District Judge Charles B. Kenner, of Montgomery. District Judge Robert T. Ervin, of Mobile, and Judge Kenner signed the order, with Judge Joseph T. Hutcheson, of the United States circuit court, Houston, Texas, dissenting.

The two-to-one decision enjoined state officials from collecting the funds, allegedly accumulated in the 6 cents per gallon state gasoline tax over a period of years.

WELDING FARM AND CITY

In his address before the American Farm Bureau Federation in Chicago, President Roosevelt makes an appeal to the farm relief program has put a heavy burden on the consuming public in the statement that the $3,000,000,000 increase in farm revenues "instead of burdening consumers as a group has actually given them net benefits."

In amplifying this statement the President continues: "There are individuals whose incomes have not risen in proportion to the rise in certain food prices; but at the same time the total net income of city dwellers is several billion dollars higher than in 1932, and I think you will agree with me that bargain prices for food in 1932 were little consolation to people in cities with no income whatsoever."

President Roosevelt reveals the same militant spirit evidenced in his recent address in Atlanta in his charge that the protest against the price of food products is being fomented by "political profiteers" who are seeking to agitate the cities against the farmer and the farm program. He emphasizes again his position that "farm prosperity cannot exist without city prosperity and city prosperity cannot exist without farm prosperity."

The same thought of mutual rights and dependence of all classes of the population if the well-being of all is to be established on a firm basis is touched on in his address, also delivered Monday, at Notre Dame University in the statement that "there can be no true national life, either within a nation itself or between that nation and other nations, unless there be the specific acknowledgment of, and the support of organic law to the rights of man," this statement bearing on the program now under way for the granting of complete independence to the Philippines.

In both addresses, although delivered on widely varying subjects, the President reveals again his earnest belief that the greatest prosperity for the country lies in the improvement of the condition of the masses in order that there may be a sounder, better balanced economic structure.

PLAN FLIGHTS TO EUROPE

News that a great six-motored French airplane is now on its way to South America and that the ship may soon make a flight across the northern Pacific is the forerunner of regular air service between Europe and North America, brings the announcement from Pan-American Airways that the company is ready to start such service as soon as international negotiations, now in progress, provide landing fields abroad, and tests flight are made.

Postal and aeronautical experts of four nations are meeting in Washington with regular trans-Atlantic air schedules as the objective, but Pan-American will not attempt such a service until carefully planned and executed experimental flights, similar to those the same company conducted over the Pacific, have been made.

It is probable, therefore, that the people of America will be engrossed in the near future in reading of spectacular test flights over the trans-Atlantic air lanes by great flying boats similar to those that have thrilled the country by their flights from California to Hawaii, and from thence to Midway, Wake, Guam and the Philippine Islands.

The experience gained in perfecting the land control stations and the proven airworthiness of the clipper ships will make the Atlantic tests much easier and simpler than those over the Pacific, and require much less time in the preparation for air service from the eastern coast of America to Europe.

When regular service is established across the Pacific the time required to reach China will be approximately the same number of days as weeks are now required by the fastest steamers. When Atlantic air schedules are launched, it will mean that Atlantians can go to the nearest base on the coast, which will probably be Charleston or Norfolk, and there board a plane, the entire trip requiring about two days as against the approximately seven days by boat.

The ability of the flying boats to ride out, either in the air or on the water, in case descent should be necessary, all but the most violent atmospheric disturbances, makes the once perilous trans-oceanic flights comparatively safe, and service between America and Europe, once started, should attract liberal patronage.

THE NAVAL PARLEY.

Seldom has an international conference, regardless of its nature, convened in an atmosphere of greater pessimism than the naval conference that opened in London yesterday.

As the delegates of the United States, Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy get together to talk disarmament, they are faced with a world feverishly engaged in building more and bigger warships of every type, with the prospect that 1936 and 1937 will be marked as the years of greatest naval construction in history.

France is starting the construction of two 35,000-ton super battleships; Japan is reported as having perfected a submarine which is equipped with a small seaplane; Germany is building two 26,000-ton battleships which, while not as large as the vessels being built by France, will be much faster; Great Britain is working on plans to make its navy the largest in the nation's history, and the United States' naval program contemplates a large increase in its fighting ships.

Japan has flatly demanded full parity with the United States and Great Britain, in place of the 5-5-3 ratio of the Washington conference, but Russia has notified the conference that such an increase in the Japanese naval strength will not be acceptable, and the United States has taken the same position.

The Washington and London naval limitation treaties expire next year and carry a proviso that they will be self-continuing unless notice of intention to withdraw is filed by one or more of the signatories. Such a notice has been filed by Japan, based on its demand for equality of strength and the treaties will die next year unless, in the meantime, a new understanding has been reached. It is because of this time limit that the London conference is now being held despite its apparent certainty of failure.

In view of the sensitive condition of the chief naval powers, it is freely predicted that failure to reach an agreement replacing the existing treaties will assure a naval building race on a scale never before approximated.

The chief ray of hope that such a race for naval supremacy may be avoided lies in the prospect that the present conference may lay the ground for another conference to be held next year, pending which the various governments involved may be able through diplomatic negotiations to find a common ground on which to proceed to the goal of armament reduction.

Roving Ambassador Norman H. Davis, chief of the American delegation, points the way to such a course in his statement at the London conference that, in the event the present treaties cannot be renewed, "we should at any rate make every endeavor, through a frank and friendly exchange of views, to discover paths to mutual understanding, which would at least prevent a naval race."

So while the present conference seems doomed to failure so far as definite results are concerned, it may well prove the foundation upon which can be built a new agreement for limitation of naval armaments.

Temperatures are consistently lower in the hamlet of Owl's Head than anywhere else in New York state. And citizens insist that that is a cold fact.

While we are on the subject—there are only about 150 more shooting days in Ethiopia before the big rainy season begins.

It isn't the shopping days before Christmas that worry the department store clerks but the swapping days, afterward.

One of the nicest things—and it's a new idea, too—about the new styles in women's hats is that they really look like hats.

Anniversary of Tolstoy's Death.

ADDIS ABABA.—A chance newspaper, which came into my hands, reminded me that it is 25 years ago since Tolstoy died. It must have been something extraordinary to see and hear that man, who really surpassed the human measure. Gorki, in his souvenirs of great visual and suggestive powers, was badly handicapped. He played the poor man. But down in his heart he knew that even that was not sufficient. He knew glory in his lifetime and yet he felt desolated and even desperate. He would maintain himself against the opposition of resistance. But in his latter days he came to the bitter conclusion that non-resistance was no solution either. In the end he had only one desire: to escape, to flee, to subtract himself from all the interests of man by man. In the end he found his only refuge in a few humble words—I can do no more, but no less either to discharge a debt of gratitude immense—I want to forget the personal, intimate family tragedy of the man. In the end he found his only refuge in a few humble words—I can do no more, but no less either to discharge a debt of gratitude immense—I want to forget the personal, intimate family tragedy of the man. In the end he found his only refuge in a few humble words—I can do no more, but no less either to discharge a debt of gratitude immense—I want to forget the personal, intimate family tragedy of the man.

In commemorating Tolstoy here in a few humble words—I can do no more, but no less either to discharge a debt of gratitude immense—I want to forget the personal, intimate family tragedy of the man. For half a century Leon Tolstoy has been the consolation of the world, its incarnated remorse. The world wanted to reconcile itself with Tolstoy. All eyes were on that little railway station at Astapovo where he lay dying. What a scene! The czar's staffs were excited. The czar was worried. An emissary of the holy synod sped toward the dying colossus. What a victory it would have been for the Orthodox church if it could have blessed Tolstoy in his last moments, if it would have been possible to say later that he died a penitent, reconciled. General Levasseur telegraphed to the neighboring military authorities: "Fortify the railway line." Because a poor old man lay dying at Astapovo where he lay dying. What a scene! GEORGIA DEMOCRATS WILL MEET JANUARY 8

Mayor Key Named Chair- man of Rally of Roosevelt Supporters.

Georgia supporters of President Roosevelt yesterday answered Governor Talmadge's announcement of a convention of "constitutional democrats" next month with the calling of a state-wide Roosevelt rally for Atlanta on Jackson Day, January 8. Mayor Key accepted chairmanship of the Jackson Day committee and immediately announced the appointment of a local committee which will start work on the problem for the day. Senator Walter F. George and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr. will be the keynote speakers.

The Talmadge meeting is to be known as the convention of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution. No date for this meeting has been set, but it is scheduled to be called soon by J. H. Kirby, of Houston, Texas, the chairman. It is known that the Roosevelt supporters planned their meeting for January 8 in order to keep the Talmadge group from having its session that day.

The personnel of Mayor Key's local committee follows:

Walter H. Rich, Hughes Spaulding, J. R. Gray, Clark Howell Jr., Robert G. Clay, Reuben Arnold, William Schley Howard and J. Sid Tiller.

A state committee, to include leading supporters of the President from all sections of Georgia, will be announced later.

Jackson Day dinners are to be held by democrats all over the country, simultaneously with the big meeting in Washington, which will be featured by the session of the democratic national committee.

"It will be one great rally of democrats," Mayor Key said. "They will assemble in different cities but it will be for a united purpose and that is to fight off the republicans and those republicans who still style themselves democrats."

Governor Talmadge said yesterday that the meeting of the Southern Committee to Uphold the Constitution would be financed out of the regular $1 membership dues.

"The committee is not confined to any class," the Governor said. "It is open to all who believe in the principles of Thomas Jefferson, the founder of the democratic party."

FREE PULP TARIFF HIT BY TALMADGE

Governor Sees Menace to New Georgia Industry in Duty-Free Newsprint.

Governor Talmadge yesterday protested the United States-Canadian tariff agreement by which he said newsprint wood pulp may be imported duty free.

"The signing of this treaty . . . will certainly retard and possibly destroy the development of our paper industry that was recently begun in Georgia and other southern states," he said.

"Some few months ago the announcement was made that the government would aid in the development of the pulp industry in the south," he said.

"Announcement was made from the White House that Mordecai Ezekiel, economic adviser to the secretary of agriculture, had been put in charge of the work; that at least $36,000,000 would be expended to develop the wood pulp and newspaper industry in the southern part of the United States."

"The Department of Agriculture announced at the same time that the United States imported annually about $130,000,000 worth of this paper and that within a few years all of this wealth would accrue to the poor farmers of the south in their slash pine."

OWNERSHIP BY U. S. OF RAILS OPPOSED

Georgia Group Adopts Resolution After Address by Stanley, Here.

A resolution urging senators and congressmen to oppose any bill aimed toward government ownership of railroads and any legislation which might burden the railroads so that government ownership would result was passed yesterday at a meeting of the Georgia section of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Adoption of the resolution followed an address by W. L. Stanley, railroad public relations official of the Seaboard Air Line, at the Athletic Club. Mr. Stanley declared that "government ownership of the railroads constitutes a very serious threat."

"The railroads are fighting for their lives," the speaker said, "not only to overcome economic conditions common to all forms of business, but in combating hostile and destructive legislation."

Mr. Stanley also cited figures showing decreased net and gross railway income and increased operating ratio as an unfortunate condition which railway companies face.

GOVERNMENT TO PUSH CASE AGAINST HARVEY

Camp Announces Decision Not To Nol-Pro's After Conference.

Federal District Attorney Lawrence S. Camp said yesterday all talk of dropping the government's case against Leland Harvey and Aubrey Smith is "definitely out for the time being."

Harvey and Smith, widely known escape artists, were recently granted a new trial following a conviction of robbing bank officials at Rome, Ga., in August, 1934.

Gram Wright, Rome attorney, who is assisting Camp in the case, conferred yesterday with Assistant District Attorney M. Neil Andrews with the announced purpose of determining whether to "holle prossie or go ahead."

Andrews said he conferred with Washington officials recently and "because of the many things involved in the case" it was decided to leave the matter entirely up to the office here.

The Smith-Harvey case is set for retrial here January 20. It was formerly tried at Rome.

"We are now preparing our case and expect to subpoena our witnesses early in January," Andrews said.

At the trial in Rome, the government identified Harvey and Smith by two bank officials who were robbed of $9,875 and by officers and residents of the vicinity who said they recognized the two men seen fleeing in a car supposed to have been used by the robbers.

The pair offered an alibi that they were in Chicago when the robbery was committed. On their motion for a new trial they offered affidavits of several residents of the Rome vicinity who declared they had also seen the robbers. These affidavits said the robbers were not Harvey and Smith.

Judge E. Marvin Underwood, in his order granting the new trial, said the government's identification testimony was not strong enough.

BOARD TO REQUEST FUNDS FOR RELIEF

Atlanta To Be Asked To Give $40,000 Monthly, Fulton $25,000.

J. Sid Tiller, chairman of the Fulton county public welfare board, yesterday announced that he will appoint committees soon to request funds from Atlanta and Fulton county for relief work during 1936.

The chairman said the city will be asked for $40,000 a month. The county will be requested to furnish $25,000 monthly, the same sums contributed each month during 1935.

At the December meeting of the welfare board, held yesterday, routine business was handled. Tiller said he would name his committees within a short time.

The county's share will be set up in the budget which will be adopted by the county commission soon after January 1. "The city will make allocation some time in January," W. Eugene Harrington, who resigned as welfare board chairman recently, said that the city probably will have to devise a new method of raising relief money. Atlanta in the past has raised it by refunding of bonds.

NEGRO THUG IS SOUGHT FOR WOUNDING THREE

The condition of Guy C. Morris, 35, operator of a restaurant at 358 Madison street, N. W., who was shot Sunday night by a negro bandit, was said to be fair last night at Grady hospital. It is believed he will recover.

Police believe the negro may be the same one who shot two other storekeepers last week in similar manner. Councilman Thomas M. Kener, of College Park, D. W. Dirham, grocer, were last week's victims.

In all three instances the negro has shot without giving his victims a chance to hand over their money. Descriptions of the thug tally in major details.

LAST SERVICES TODAY FOR CASTLE VAUGHAN

Final rites for Castle A. Vaughan, well-known Forrest Park farmer who died Sunday in a private hospital here, will be held at 1 o'clock this afternoon at the Haw Creek Baptist church near Cumming, with the Rev. B. K. Vaughan officiating.

Vaughan was a member of the Baptist church and the Woodmen of the World. Burial will be in the Haw Creek churchyard, with H. M. Patterson & Son in charge.

HUNDREDS ARE SLAIN BY ITALIANS AT JUBA

Delayed Report Tells of Aerial Raid on Southern Sector.

MOGADISCIO, Italian Somaliland, Dec. 9.—(Delayed)—(P)—Hundreds of Ethiopians were reported today to have been killed in an Italian air attack on troops of Ras Desta Deme, son-in-law of Emperor Haile Selassie. A squadron, a high official source disclosed, flew from Dolo to Juba to drop 70-pound bombs on the warriors. Thursday, Ethiopians returned the fire and one Italian observer was killed.

(Dolo, where the fliers departed, is on the western end of the border between Ethiopia and Italian Somaliland. The town of Juba, apparently the "Juba" referred to in the dispatch, is placed by the British war office map 175 miles north of Dolo, in the Shabelle river region.)

ADDIS ABABA PREPARES FOR EXPECTED BOMBING
ADDIS ABABA, Dec. 9.—(P)—Many residents of Addis Ababa hastily began digging trenches today, fearing Italian fliers would follow up their bombings of Dessale with an attack on the city.

A strange airplane seen by some residents flying high over the capital resulted in reports that the Italians were surveying the situation here. The government tried to identify the plane but failed.

Some residents said the Italian radio station at Asmara, Eritrea, had broadcast a report Addis Ababa would be attacked.

Government sources said four fascist planes flew over Dessale again today but dropped no bombs.

The Belgians threatened to leave the Ethiopian army submitted their resignations today. There has been a clash of views between these military advisers and high Ethiopian officials.

The Belgians threatened to leave unless the difficulty is ironed out. The nature of the disagreement was not disclosed.

ITALIAN ENVOY'S AIDE

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 9.—(P)—Police disclosed today that Lieutenant Hugo Bariano, secretary to the military attaché of the Italian embassy, was found dead in his apartment yesterday.

cause that spells results in characters built into grand citizenship, into homes held together when wreckage impended, into the happy wrecks of mothers and children made glad as the dread spectre of separation and of institutional life is driven from their doors.

Results are what we seek in sponsoring these opportunity families and, as the years roll by, we can point with deepest gratitude to the most magnificent roster of success any like effort has ever known.

For instance, Last Christmas the response to this appeal was such that we were able to accept 14, instead of 10, opportunities. Fourteen splendid Atlanta families were held together and led, through the generosity of those who responded to their call, toward that day when they could once again be entirely self-dependent.

Seven Families Rehabilitated.
Of those 14 families seven today proudly state they need outside help no longer. The regular monthly sum have enabled them to so hold together and develop their own potentialities that today they can stand alone, son their feet, and live upon their own earnings as self-respecting families should.

Isn't that a result worth boasting?

The other seven needed continued help for awhile. Each shows improvement and there is ample evidence that, given more time, these seven, too, will reach independence.

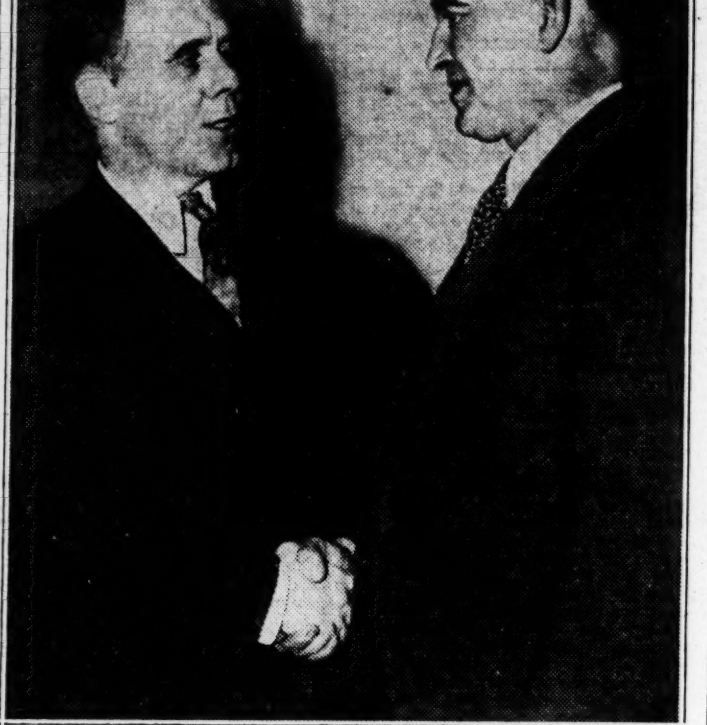

The stories of two of this year's opportunity families have now been told. There are eight more waiting, eight little stories of human want and suffering that will be told, day by day, in these columns. Ten stories of need that must be met through the generosity of Atlanta's great heart, if the 10 homes are not to fall upon the rocks of poverty and be wrecked upon the shoals of privation.

Needs Are Small.
We want everyone who can to assume responsibility for one opportunity family for the year. This means, for Opportunity No. 1, a gift of $36 each month, a total of $432 for the year.

Opportunity No. 2 requires only $20 a month, or $240 for the year. You can read the true stories of these two families, Number One in

PRIMARIES VOTERS TOLD TO QUALIFY

Yeomans Says Franchise Requires Qualifying for General Election.

To participate in county primaries, voters first must qualify for the general election next fall, Attorney-General M. J. Yeomans ruled yesterday. All poll taxes, including those due October 1, for 1935, must be paid to secure eligibility to vote, the attorney-general ruled.

The attorney-general said, however, that his ruling would not be effective until December 29 and thus would not apply to several county primaries scheduled prior to that date.

"In my opinion," he said, "this payment must be made before the voter offers to vote in the primary, and in addition to such payment his name must be added to the voters' list by the county registrar."

"If he makes such payment before he offers to vote, and his name is added to the voters' list by the registrar, he, in my opinion, then becomes a voter qualified to vote in the general election in November and accordingly a voter qualified to vote at a primary to nominate candidates to be voted on in that general election."

The opinion was issued "unofficially" in response to various questions by county officials.

well and who had been so good to them.

For a short time the three children tried to find their joy in each other's companionship but there was little money and they were too young to assume the burden, yet, of supporting a home. So the home so filled with happy memories had to go.

Friends offered to take the three, but this meant separation. Dick went to one home, Annie to another and Jack to still a third. These friends, however, were themselves poor and an added mouth to feed, another one to need clothes, meant real sacrifice. And the children are old enough to realize this, they felt that after all, they were strangers and, perhaps, not really wanted.

Separation Hard.
Dick worried constantly about Annie and Jack, wondering where they happy and were the people with whom they lived kind to them. Annie, aching for the old companionship of her "two buddies," cried herself to sleep, many a night.

Dick, the eldest, feeling his responsibility as head of the little family, feeling he must try to take the place of father and mother both to his younger sister and brother, went to the Family Welfare Society with his problem. The society found a way that the three can be together again. They found temporary financial help that enabled the grandmother of the three children to take them into her home and the children, together once again, knew a rebirth of happiness.

The grandmother has all the love in the world for the three, but she is old and frail and doesn't understand very well the problems of adolescent youth. The Family Welfare Society worker is doing the best possible to provide some of the help and advice that the parents, were they alive, would give.

The problem, for 1936, is to provide sufficient funds to keep the three together, with their grandmother. It can't be done without outside help.

So, therein lies opportunity for some one, some group, in Atlanta to perform a really constructive service in citizenship building. There are no finer youngsters in the entire city than these three. Their love for each other is the greatest thing in their lives. It is vital for their future, that they stay together and help each other. It will take $20 a month, only, through 1936, to keep them together. Not much of a price for the happiness of three splendid children and an old grandmother, is it?

ball, where a carnival queen will be crowned to reign over the festivities. Mrs. Conneratt asserts that she is most pleased with the entrants to the queen contest thus far. The contestants are selling tickets to the Shrine mosque ball and the girl selling the most will be named queen.

Harry T. Barfield, chairman of the paper sales committee, was jubilant yesterday as he outlined preliminary plans for selling the Big Brother edition of The Constitution next Sunday morning.

"Why there will be hundreds of Big Brothers canvassing the entire city and suburbs for two hours Sunday, and they will certainly sell plenty of the papers in the name of this good charity," said Barfield.

"The men and women who are members of the Big Brother club are enthusiastic about the campaign and every one of them is determined to raise more money this year than the club did last year."

The reason for that is the need is greater. Every day we get many letters requesting that we play Santa Claus for some poor family.

"One letter told us about a widow with five children. Her husband died two years ago, right in the middle of the depression. He did not leave her anything. This poor woman has managed to live, with relief help, but now that Christmas is only a few days away she doesn't know what to do."

No Money for Toys.

"This mother has not got a cent to buy her children the bright, cheerful little gifts that mean so much in making Christmas a season of rejoicing and happiness. It is a sad story to tell. Now the Big Brothers Club was formed by The Constitution and the American Legion Post No. 10, for just such cases."

"This year the Big Brothers will be Santa Claus for this poor woman's five children. We will make their Christmas cheerful," he said.

Chairman Barfield's sentiment corresponds to the feeling of hundreds of other Big Brothers. They know how much knowing someone cares means to poor children. They have seen the suffering of little boys and girls who have nothing on Christmas Day, nothing except sorrow and drabness.

Help the Big Brothers this year when they start their campaign next Sunday morning! Give them a welcome when they knock on your door with the Big Brother edition of The Constitution. It will mean something to you when you remember it later!

Join the Big Brothers Club now. Accompanying this article is a coupon for you to sign and return to Big Brother headquarters on the ground floor of the Chamber of Commerce building. It entitles you to help sell the special edition for two hours Sunday morning. It means happiness for some poor child.

YOUTH, 11, IS ARRESTED IN PLAYMATE KILLING

PENSACOLA, Fla., Dec. 9.—(UP)—Dewey T. Albritton, 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Albritton, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff H. Taylor here today in the fatal shooting of John D. Walker, 13, an Indian lad, in a boys' quarrel.

Taylor said the shooting occurred Saturday while the two boys and James D. Brown, 12, were hunting in the north end of Escambia county, Alabama. Walker died Sunday night in an Amore (Ala.) hospital.

Officials quoted Brown as saying the shooting followed a fist fight between the younger boys.

"You haven't got the nerve to shoot me," the Indian is said to have challenged just before the fatal shot was fired.

The Albritton boy was locked up and later released in custody of his parents, who are county farming people.

FRAUD ORDERS ISSUED ON SWEEPSTAKES OPERATORS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(UP)—The Postoffice Department issued fraud orders tonight against 242 sweepstakes operators, 201 of them in Canada, and ordered they be denied the use of United States mails.

The order will prevent the sending of sweepstakes tickets or literature pertaining to sweepstakes by mail into this country by the concerns named, postoffice officials said.

The order included the largest number of sweepstakes operators ever named at one time by this government, officials said.

Of the 201 in Canada, 156 are in Montreal, 21 in Ottawa, 14 in Sherbrooke, three in Coteauville, two in Westmount and five in Verdun. Twenty were in Havana, eight in Dublin, eight in Manila and five in Luxembourg.

EX-GEORGIA EDITOR PASSES IN OKLAHOMA

ADA, Okla., Dec. 9.—(P)—Amos B. Fitts, 78-year-old pioneer newspaperman of Oklahoma and Georgia, died here today.

Amos 11 sons and daughters who survive is John Fitts, noted oil geologist, of Ada.

The elder Fitts entered the newspaper business 51 years ago, buying a small newspaper at Buchanan, Ga. Later he was employed on The Atlanta Constitution, and was a close friend of Frank L. Stanton, famous poet.

He came to Oklahoma where he served as a federal town site officer at Perry from 1905 to 1906. During territorial days he was correspondent for as many as 14 metropolitan newspapers.

He told the University of Georgia Science Club that "we have enough area in forests now to keep us busy for a long while if we give it adequate care, culture and utilization."

A balanced use of land, the director stated, with emphasis on management of timber, "is needed most in the south, adding that "southern forests can be productive of wealth and security, of materials necessary to the nation."

AAA FARM MEASURE IS DEFENDED BY F. D. R.

and Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, who is to address the farm gathering tomorrow.

Supreme Court Fight.

And as the President spoke, another set of the political drama involving the AAA, got under way in Washington. Three government counsel argued orally for it before the supreme court, which may decide its fate in the crucial Hoosier Mills case.

The President, however, offered no substitutes for the AAA, in event of an adverse ruling on its constitutionality, in his address.

He answered surprise criticism that it was an intrusion of federal authority into a domain reserved for the states, by declaring:

"Forty-eight separate sovereign states, acting each one as a separate unit, never were able and never will be able to legislate or administer individual laws adequately to balance the agricultural life of a nation so greatly dependent on nationally grown crops of many kinds.

"The measures to which we turned to stop the decline and rout of American agriculture," he reminded his listeners, "originated in the aspirations of the farmers themselves expressed through several farm organizations.

"We sought to stop the rule of tooth and claw that threw farmers into bankruptcy or turned them virtually into serfs."

Income Gains Cited.

Citing the gains in farm income to better than 60 per cent of normal, the President said:

"This buying power has been felt in many lines of business."

Of the trade treaty with Canada which "dispensers of discord" contended victimized the farmers, the President said:

"I am sure that the great majority of American farmers will be fair in their judgment."

"Agriculture, far from being crucified by this agreement, as some have told you," he continued, "actually gains from it."

"We export more agricultural products to Canada than we have ever before. We shall continue to do so."

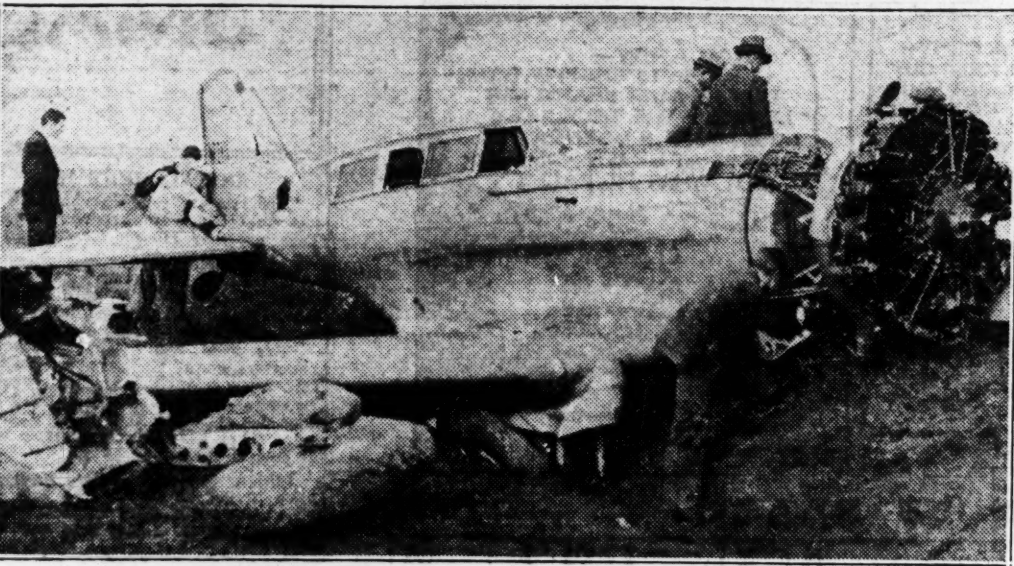

"If the calamity howlers should happen to be right, you have every assurance that Canada and the United States will join in correcting inquiries. But I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right."

High Price Howlers.

The cry against higher farm prices, raised in some critical quarters, the President said, comes chiefly from the few "who profited heavily from the depression" and their "henchmen who are doing their best to ferment city people against the farmers and the farm program."

"Though food prices in the city are

Ellsworth Rescue Plane Ends Trip in Ditch Here

The battered Ellsworth rescue plane, shown just after its disastrous attempt to take off early yesterday morning at the Atlanta airport. The motor cut out, according to Russell W. Thaw, the pilot, and the plane pancaked to the ground and into a ditch, tearing off one wing, damaging the other and destroying the landing gear. "The government is trying to give advantages to those I believe are technically called 'underprivileged' and by helping those we help others who have more now."

In a brief address following the President's O'Neal presented him with the federation's high annual award for distinguished and meritorious service to agriculture and told the farmer delegates:

"The agricultural policy established by your federation is now the dominating policy of the nation. It demands continuation of all mechanisms which will guarantee economic equality in our social justice."

He promised the chief magistrate the federation's continued aid for New Deal farm policies.

Charles E. Hearst, of Des Moines, chairman of the federation's resolutions committee, said he believed the organization, claiming to represent 500,000 farm families in 37 states, would formally approve O'Neal's endorsement of the President's farm program.

After his address, broadcast nationally on three networks, the President was the guest at luncheon of Mayor Edward J. Kelly and then sped on in his special train to South Bend, Ind.

Notre Dame Address. Addressing the Notre Dame Address, he said:

"There he depicted America's religious liberty as a guide for all nations in an address in Notre Dame University's gymnasium. Representatives of the Catholic hierarchy, officers and students of the school, federal, state and city officials heard the chief executive's address.

"Religion can be directed only by reason and conviction, not by force and violence, and therefore all men are equally entitled to free exercise of religion according to the dictates of conscience."

"In the conflict of policies of political systems which the world today witnesses, the United States has held forth for its own guidance and for the guidance of other nations, if they will accept it, this great torch of liberty of human thought, liberty of human conscience."

"We will never lower it. Rather, we will seek to increase that light."

The honorary degree was then conferred on Mr. Roosevelt.

It culminated the university's convocation in commemoration of Philippine independence.

No mention was made of the criticism of the President by some members of the Knights of Columbus because he declined to protest against the alleged persecution of Catholics in Mexico. Mr. Roosevelt's remarks were delivered, too, at a time when cries of religious and racial minorities in Russia and Germany. Bend, the President's train left for Washington with no stops scheduled en route.

F. D. R. REITERATES "KEEP OUT" POLICY

Roosevelt Voices Wish World Would Follow U. S. Example.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(P)—President Roosevelt gave at a luncheon audience today a short statement of the country's war policy: "Keep out."

"You and I," he said, "know that we have no intention of getting mixed up in the wars of the world."

"We all hope that when the rest of the world sees the example set that it will take a leaf from the notebook of the United States and cease much of this strife."

The President spoke before 300 persons in the Saddle and Siroin Club at the Chicago stockyards, after addressing the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The President also told the philosophers behind his "New Deal" program. He said:

"The government is trying to give advantages to those I believe are technically called 'underprivileged' and by helping those we help others who have more now."

of the demonstration which accompanied it.

"Once again this assembly has shown itself to be equal to the task which life and history give a progressive nation."

"The senate may be certain that Italian interests, both African and European, will be defended strenuously."

Luigi Federzoni, president of the senate, in an opening address which Mussolini must have approved, said the senate was "indomitable in its decision to resist and at whatever cost."

The presence of the prince, he asserted, again proved the "communion" between the Italian people and the royal house of Savoy. The six princes listened attentively, applauding all speakers warmly.

Gifts of Gold.

Federzoni said the senators "almost unanimously" would give their gold insignia to the country December 18 when the queen and women of Italy will give their wedding rings.

He "almost" recognized the existence of a very small and yearly diminishing minority that votes against Mussolini. It had been removed from these few senators today would declare their allegiance to the fascist regime and this was indicated in the unanimous vote for the war expense bill.

A huge ovation was given the aged Grand Admiral Thaon di Revel for his role in the Italian fleet.

"I never would have believed that I," he said, "to whom fell the duty of commanding the Italian fleet in co-operation with the French and English during the World War, should see a concentration of warships in the Mediterranean."

"Our principal allies to give effect to an absurd pact of the League of Nations."

BRITISH CABINET APPROVES PEACE PLAN

LONDON, Dec. 9.—(P)—Great Britain's cabinet was reported tonight to have given speedy approval to a joint Anglo-French plan for peace in Africa.

The cabinet met late in the day for one hour to study the proposal, drafted in Paris yesterday by Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare, British foreign secretary.

There was no official announcement of the cabinet's action, but it was stated in informed circles the plan had been approved and that Paris was to be notified at once.

It was expected the project will be placed officially before Premier Mussolini and Emperor Haile Selassie soon.

Despite the peace plan, authoritative sources said the British government is proceeding with preparation for a meeting Thursday of a League of Nations committee to consider the imposition of an oil embargo against Italy.

Maurice Peterson, British foreign expert on Ethiopia, brought the peace plan from Paris today and immediately went to conference with Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare.

Great Britain, it was stated, does not intend to problem of solution to Ethiopia. The British government, it was said, definitely entertains hope that the proposal will be accepted by Italy.

PEACE IN BALANCE FRANCE AWAITS DUE

PARIS, Dec. 9.—(P)—The League of Nations council, which must approve any new Anglo-French peace plan, was summoned to meet in special session December 17.

Many Geneva observers believed the council would consider the Italo-Ethiopian situation, although the session was called primarily for a discussion of the transfer of 25,000 Assyrians from Iraq to their homeland.

Everyone conceded the African question had reached a crisis. On Premier Mussolini's reply to the Franco-British peace proposals will making of submarines, destroyers and small cruisers.

Presenting President Roosevelt's proposal for progressive naval armament reduction, Davis pledged the United States to refrain from taking the lead in any naval race.

Limitation Sought.

"We want limitation and reduction of the existing treaty tonnage," he told the delegates of nations possessing 1,500 warships. "We want limitation and reduction. We have no wish to exceed treaty limits."

The American "ambassador at large" quoted a letter representing President Roosevelt's views on naval disarmament on October 5, 1934, prior to preliminary conference between Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

Then Mr. Roosevelt suggested "a total tonnage reduction of 20 per cent below existing treaty tonnage." If this was impossible, a reduction of 15, 10 or 5 per cent, and "only if all else fails" an agreement for the extension of existing treaties "over as long a period as possible."

The British prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, proposed that the principle of the Washington and London treaties, which expire next year, be retained. But, he suggested, they should be modified to consider "altered international circumstances and the needs of individual powers."

He referred to the "naval powers not represented here"—an indication, observers believed, that Germany and the Soviet Union may later be asked to participate in any new treaty.

Submarine Warfare Hit.

Baldwin made it plain his nation attached the "greater importance" to limitation both of total fleet tonnage and the weight and armament of the various types of ships. He urged an agreement to halt "unrestricted submarine warfare" in the future.

France, through her London ambassador, Charles Corbin, raised the question of limiting land and air armaments.

Corbin pledged even reduction in the maximum tonnage and gun caliber in various classes of ships, but warned the total tonnage issue must "raise the general problem of the three categories of armaments."

Italy, non-committal on its position, referred, nevertheless, to the sanctions situation growing out of her war on Ethiopia. Ambassador Dino Grandi, chief fascist delegate, reminded the conference that "my government is compelled to take carefully into account the present situation which has been created by the attitude of many states belonging to the League of Nations with regard to my country."

Conciliatory Address.

Italy, he said, would on no account abandon her principle aim—"to avoid an armament race."

Nagano's brief address was regarded as exceptionally conciliatory. He asked a "just and fair agreement on disarmament" and supported Prime Minister Baldwin's plea for an accord to prevent the "misuse" of submarines.

France similarly adhered to the British proposal for a protocol concerning the use of submarines in wartime and their treatment of merchant ships.

Britain, the United States and Japan are bound by such an agreement under a treaty of 1930. Baldwin also announced that France and Italy, as a result of preliminary discussions, were ready to join an agreement to restrict submarines.

Viscount Monsell, first lord of the admiralty, presided at the conference in the absence of Sir Samuel Hoare, the British foreign secretary, who was elected president. Sir Samuel is in Switzerland for a rest.

NYE ASSERTS JAPAN WILL GET FULL STRENGTH

HONOLULU, Dec. 9.—(P)—Senator Gerald P. Nye, republican, North Dakota, said today he had little hope the London naval conference would be successful, and that the United States and Great Britain might as well grant Japan parity.

The senator, returning from a trip to Japan, endorsed the proposal of Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation to the conference, for a flat reduction of naval tonnage.

"Japan will not tolerate the old 5-5-3 ratio any more than the United States would if another power told us we were not so great or were not entitled to as much naval strength," Nye said.

"Japan will acquire naval parity whether we allow it or not—providing, of course, she can afford it or thinks she should have it for national security."

"I see no threat to our security or security of any other western power in Japan's demand for naval strength comparable with ours."

SMALL TOWN GIRL

BY BEN AMES WILLIAMS

INSTALLMENT II.

"Ned Pastor, from Manchester," Elmer told her. "He graduated from Tech last year. His old man's a director of the company."

"I think it's a shame," Lillian declared. "They ought to have put in a Carvel man. Her glance touched Kay, loyally; and Kay smiled her gratitude. "I've seen him," Elmer declared. "Pretty smooth! He'll give the girls in this town a thrill." He said again: "S'long," and swung out through the door, his spurs grating on the granite steps. They heard the motorcycle roar as he sped away.

Lillian said ruefully: "Well, I'll have to get on to school. The two girls came out of the postoffice together, and Lillian turned one way and Kay another. She carried Emily's letter in her hand, unopened, for it was addressed to Mrs. Brannon. She stopped at the grocery, and George Hastings approached to serve her. George was a slow, heavy young man; a cool, sober young man, Carvel said. His white apron was clean.

"Hello, Kay," he remarked. "Something today?"

"Two heads of lettuce," Kay told him. "And have you good tomatoes?"

George said he had; he volunteered to deliver the things, but Kay shook her head. "I can carry them, well as not," she decided. "I'm going right home, and it will save your truck a trip."

"Hear anything from Emily?" George asked slowly, intent upon the business in hand. A friendly amusement showed for a moment in Kay's eyes.

"A letter this morning," she admitted.

"All right, is she?"

"Of course, but I haven't opened it yet."

"I ain't heart for over two weeks," George confessed. "I guess she don't get much time for writing letters. And I dunno as I'm much of a hand at writing to her."

"She's ever so busy," Kay agreed. "You mustn't mind her not writing."

"Gosh, no!" George assented. "She's been mighty nice about it, though. I hear regular. Well, it'll be good to see her back home to stay!" And he said: "I guess you'll be going down to her commencement."

Kay laughed in happy certainty. "I should say I will," she declared. "I've been planning on it for four years. I wouldn't miss it for—anything!"

George nodded, and he said diffidently:

"I kind of figured I might be in Boston about that time, might go out and see her, if she weren't too busy. Wrote and told her so." He added doubtfully: "But she didn't say any—"

"She'd be glad to see you, I know," Kay assured him. "You're her oldest friend, George. Emily's very fond of you."

George grinned with pleasure, and he presented the parcel. "That all?" he asked, and Kay nodded and took it and turned away.

"I heard tell young Pastor is coming to turn the power plant," George remarked. "Your pa told me, last night."

"Elmer told me this morning," Kay agreed. "I didn't see father last night. He was late."

"I walked home with him," George explained. "Feel better today, does he?"

"Yes, but mother's keeping him in her room," Kay confessed, a faint evasion in her tones. Her father's illnesses were better not discussed. She nodded a good-by and moved away, and her

"She's in love with him," Kay cried. "I know she is."

In the fall, I got word today, and I'm going, I'm going, I'm so excited I can hardly stand, Kay, I don't see how you've stood it, to wait so long, if I had to wait two years I'd die, I think you're marvelous, and that."

"No need for you to wait. There's only one of you," Kay reminded her, smiling. Nancy never used periods. She talked until she was interrupted, took a quick breath while anyone else was speaking, and burst into words again at the first lull.

"I should think you'd just hate Emily!" the girl cried, as Kay paused. "Having to wait for her to get through..."

"I don't," Kay assured her. "I feel as if I'd helped, some, by waiting. We're awfully proud of Emily, you know. She's done so wonderfully. And, of course, father couldn't afford to have us both in Wellesley at once. Really, I haven't minded at all."

"But, darling!" Nancy protested. "To just sit and twiddle your thumbs, when you're all ready and everything. I just couldn't bear it. I don't know how I'm going to wait even till fall, just think Kay will be in college together, at the same time I mean, even if we are in dif-

The DEBUNKER

By John Harvey Farley, Ph.D.

Many school books lead pupils to believe that the ancient country of Gaul designated only that territory now called France. This is quite inaccurate. Gaul included the territory now occupied by three countries—France, Belgium and Switzerland. Caesar himself says "All Gaul is divided into three parts" in the opening sentence of his "Julius Caesar." Gaul was originally called "Gallia." Some of upper Italy was also probably a part of Gaul. The natives of Gaul are described by the classical writers as tall, blond and large-bodied. They were of Celtic language.

OLD ROMAN THEATERS.

Like people in ancient Greece, the Romans had open-air theaters. They sat on stone seats, ranged in great half-circles, in front of a stage. The plays were given in the morning or afternoon, not at night. They lasted from two to four hours.

main of the long, stone-sided slots into which the curtains fell still exist. The women wore long, flowing robes, and the stage in dancing or other parts of "dumb shows" or "pantomimes" which were given between the acts; but in the main play, all the acting was done by men. If there was a woman's part in the play, a man put on the wig and dress of a woman, and painted his face or wore a mask.

The wearing of masks was a common, whether an actor took the part of a man or a woman. Sometimes an actor played three or four different parts in the same play, changing his mask for each new part. There was a high backboard for the stage, usually two houses with windows and doors which could be opened and closed.

In some, but not all, Roman plays the actors wore boots with soles five or six inches thick. This made them seem taller. The thick-soled boots were used in plays called "tragedies." The actors also wore long trailing garments, high wigs, masks with large open mouths. All in all they were strange, almost fearful, figures. When a tragedy was given for the first time in a small city, the empire, it caused so much fright (if we may believe the statement of a Roman writer) that the people in the audience ran out of the theater.

Stories about gods and goddesses were acted out in some tragedies; and men taking the parts of Jupiter, Venus, Adonis, Mars, Vulcan, Apollo and Daphne walked about the stage. There was singing and music of instruments during the play.

DECATUR COMMISSION SEATS VERNON FRANK

New Official Succeeds Hooper Alexander Jr. Who Resigned Recently.

Vernon Frank, whose election to the Decatur city commission was protested by the DeKalb League of Women Voters, was seated last night by a unanimous vote of the commission and immediately took his place as successor to Hooper Alexander Jr., resigned.

A protest from the league that Frank was ineligible to serve on the commission was not even considered by the commission, it was reported.

The protest charged that Frank had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude, citing his conviction for operating a "pin ball" machine in Fulton county. He contended that no moral question was involved.

Frank was sworn in last night by Ben B. Burgess, clerk of DeKalb superior court, and took his seat immediately.

Members of the commission elected to serve a two-year term are Scott Canfield, chairman, and Andrew Robinson, Frank and W. W. Eberhart, who succeeds R. C. Henderson, resigned, will serve a one-year term.

Alexander flew from New Orleans yesterday afternoon to attend the meeting.

The commission opened and voted on bids for construction work on the Erie Avenue school and the Decatur water works. A bid of $52,675, by Charles Mion, Atlanta, was accepted for the school construction work.

A bid for the construction of a 500,000-gallon steel tank for the waterworks was awarded the Chicago Bridge & Iron Works, through their Birmingham office, at an estimate of $34,975. Both bids are subject to the approval of the WPA and the validation of bonds voted by Decatur citizens.

'Blossom Time' Retains Old Charm, Audience at Erlanger Discovers

"Blossom Time," returning to the Erlanger theater last night, proved to have retained most, if not quite all, of its pristine glory. It provided a really delightful evening of entertainment and again proved as it has repeatedly in the past, that no opera with its music arranged from the immortal melodies of Franz Schubert can ever be anything but a joy forever.

The cast that comes this time is worthy of the great music, almost throughout. There are those great songs and choruses into our hearts once again and all the delicate charm of the story, with its atmosphere of love, frustration, its aroma of the springtime of life and the beauty of the autumn and its faith, crept into our hearts once again.

Outstanding in the cast this time is Helen Arnold as Mitzi Kranz, the girl Schubert loved in vain. She is a beautiful young thing and her voice is uncompromising in the difficult range of "Song of Love" with clarity and power.

J. Charles Gilbert was the Schubert, providing a realistic characterization of the great composer and singing with a voice that pleased at all times with its complete subordination to the character and its suitability to the melodies sung.

WALTER LIGGETT, 49, SLAIN IN MINNEAPOLIS

Liggett's career for further clues to the slayers.

Liggett entered the publishing business in 1905, at the age of 25, and almost at once became involved in political controversies.

His Midwest American, a Minneapolis weekly, vigorously assailed the administration of Governor Floyd Olson recently and the many disputes in which he had become involved caused Liggett to charge a "frame up" when he was tried a few weeks ago on a statutory charge involving a minor girl. He was acquitted in the Ramsey county district court.

Liggett had won wide attention to his case by appeals alleging his enemies were attempting to suppress his publication.

The weekly American was originally published at Red Wing, later moved to Rochester, and then a little more than a year ago its equipment was brought to Minneapolis.

Always a vigorous foe in his writings, Liggett had earned a variety of enemies and police began a close check of all phases of his career to seek a motive for his death.

Walter William Liggett was born February 14, 1886, in Benson, Minn. He was the son of the late Colonel William M. Liggett, who was a regent of the University of Minnesota and dean of its college of agriculture for 26 years.

Educated in Minnesota schools, Liggett was a graduate of Central High school, St. Paul, and a student at the Minnesota Agricultural College from 1904 to 1906. From 1906 to 1908 he was a reporter on various Minnesota newspapers. In 1909, he married Norma J. Ask.

From this time on Liggett was launched on a new career in magazine career that took him from Alaska to New York city and back to his native state, Minnesota, where perhaps the most turbulent phases of his life took place.

Managing Editor. He was managing editor of the Skagway Alaskan from 1908 to 1910. From 1911 to 1915 he was publisher of the Pasco (Wash.) Progress. He was managing editor of the Fargo (N. D.) Courier News from 1917 to 1918.

In 1919 after serving as director of the Minnesota State Fair, he was elected to the Minnesota State Fair board.

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts lifeless?
Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for itching, bleeding or protruding piles discovered by Dr. J. S. Leonard known as 'HEM-ROID' that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick, impure blood, and restores the affected parts.

HEM-ROID is so successful in even the most stubborn cases that Jacobs Drug Stores and all good druggists advise every sufferer to get a bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets today—take them as directed—then if not completely satisfied with results—your money back.—(adv.)

NEGRO OCCUPATION FORUM OPENS HERE

Problems To Be Discussed in Five-Day Session at Atlanta University.

To set up "a pool of creative thinking" about the problems of occupational training and placement of negroes more than a hundred educators, employers, personnel workers and government officials gathered yesterday at Atlanta University to begin the fifth of a series of discussions of occupational problems to be undertaken throughout the United States by the National Occupational Conference, exclusively to the negro.

In inaugurating the conference, General R. L. Rees, assistant vice president of the American Telephone and Telephone Company and chairman of the National Occupational Conference, said that in his opinion the scientific study of occupations and of individual aptitudes and abilities of the negro is an important undertaking that must be in our present changing civilization.

The Conference on Vocational Guidance and Education for Negroes, which is to continue for five days, will involve every phase of the testing, training, guiding and placing of individuals in occupations for which they are best adapted.

The conferees were welcomed by President S. H. Archer, of Morehouse College, who spoke in behalf of President John H. Johnson of the local planning committee.

WRIGLEY PAYS

DOLLARS RAIN

OR SHINE

Wrigley Dollars Help To

Brighten Gloomy

Days.

By MISS MINT
(The Wrigley Representative)

The gray, damp, dreary weather made a perfect blue Monday for some people yesterday, but the Wrigley Representatives brought bright smiles to the faces of many, many people by paying them a new dollar bill for their opinion of Wrigley's Gum. The requirements for becoming a dollar richer are so simple—just have an open package of Wrigley's, any flavor—Double Mint, Spearmint, Juicy Fruit, or P. K., with you when Mr. Spear, Jr., or any of our assistants, approach you, and give us your opinion of your favorite flavor.

IN NEARBY TOWNS.

We were in Gainesville, Ga., the other day and found the citizens well prepared for our visit. Many residents of Gainesville received a crisp, new dollar for their opinion of Wrigley's, but there isn't enough space to list them all. Here are just a few:

A. F. DEAN, HENRY H. ESTES, MRS. A. T. NIX, R. H. BURFORD, H. M. BURNS, J. CHARLES GRAVES, J. N. ROGERS, ANDREW FULLER, J. P. HARRISON, NORMAN DINNEY, MARY NETTA ALLEN, C. E. SMITH.

Every day we are visiting the smaller towns near Atlanta.

Now I will mention a few of the many who were prepared to receive an open package of Wrigley's in and around Atlanta:

W. E. SPURUELL, 1009 Tucker Ave., NEWMAN RAMSON, Hapeville; MRS. H. R. STONECYPHER, Fairburn; F. L. DEARING, East Point; BUYKIN DODSON, 120 Lafayette Dr., M. M. PIPER, Fairburn; MRS. E. L. MUNN, Lakewood; GORDON MORGAN, 1507 Moxley Place, C. H. HARMON, 1030 White Oak St., W. E. HAMILTON, 1119 La Rossa Terrace, HELEN FULLER, College Park; MRS. C. McDERMOTT, College Park; JIM PERRY, 1809 Peachtree St., J. E. OWENS, Marietta; R. P. MCAREEY, 1385 Stewart Ave.; BETH MCCONNELL, 237 Norwood Ave.; J. P. DENSON, 24 Howard St.; MRS. J. O. OWENS, 320 Mayson St.; C. E. SMITH, BURNETTE, 193 Tye St.; G. P. SHELTON, 352 Sterling St.; H. J. SHILSON, Grady Hospital; MRS. J. D. JONES, 123 Houston St.; A. H. DAVEN, 127 Hurt St.; R. D. SHERRILL, 583 Flat Shoals Ave.; MRS. J. A. CURRY, 484 N. Highland Ave.; L. MAULDIN, 2855 College Ave.; J. S. HYATT, 289 Norwood Ave.; W. G. IMES, 45 Doyle St.; A. BROWN, 100 Kirkwood Rd.; H. T. JOYE, 280 Norwood Ave.; J. H. MCCOLLUGH, 250 Connecticut Ave.; WILSON A. GRUBBS, 118 Madison Ave.; MRS. A. M. BOWEN, 550 Calhoun St.; MRS. W. T. LANE, 616 Peters Bldg.; KATHERINE ROGERS, 212 Howard St.; W. V. GEARHART, 304 Volunteer Bldg.

We, the Wrigley representatives, will be right here for several weeks, so be prepared for our approach at any time. Remember, all you have to do is get one of the Wrigley dollar bills, to have an open package of Wrigley's, and give an opinion of your favorite flavor.—(adv.)

Text of Roosevelt's Chicago Talk To American Farmers' Federation

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The text of the address delivered here today by President Roosevelt before the American Farm Bureau Federation follows:

Three years ago in addressing the farmers of the nation I reminded them that the economic life of the United States is a seamless web. This was a means of illustrating the great dependence of each economic unit in the nation upon every other unit. Farm prosperity cannot exist without the prosperity of other industries serving the nation's needs. Here is a common meeting ground of agriculture, transportation, industry and labor.

Only a few generations ago interdependence between agriculture and industry was not in any way as great as it is today; but now our welfare depends in part on what you do and in large part on what people do in the cities as well.

Your own experience of three and four years ago doubtless brings all of this vividly to your mind. Your sufferings—those sufferings of rural America were not because you were not producing—for your granaries and storehouses were overflowing with the products of your labor—but because things in city and country had both got out of balance and purchasing power had declined to the point where people in the cities did not have the money to buy farm products and people on the farms did not have the money to buy city products.

COULD NOT MEET LIVING EXPENSES. Two things were at that time especially clear. First, that because of almost unbelievable low prices for farm products, the growers of these products could not meet their indebtedness, could not pay their taxes, and could not meet the living expenses of their families. The other fact that in most major crops a constantly accumulating surplus had reached such absurdly high levels that crop prices could not possibly rise until something was done to cut down to a reasonable level the bulging surplus which overhung the market.

For these reasons the recovery program that this administration proposed and that congress enacted was a many-sided one. The administration and the congress that took office in March, 1933, recognized that the emergency they faced then came from many causes and endangered the life of many groups. Consequently it put the power of government behind not only railroads and banks, but the industrial workers of the nation, the farmers, the small home owners, the unemployed, and the young people who suffered from utter lack of opportunity. It was a great emergency and it required swift action. Mistakes were inevitable because it was a new field.

It was inevitable too that time had to elapse before results were fully felt. When the many cells of our economic life were free of lack of the blood of purchasing power, it took time, after fear had begun to subside, for new vital purchasing power to be diffused throughout the life of the coming back—buoyant, happy life—we need no evidence beyond what we see and hear around us.

AGRICULTURAL START. Justice and old-fashioned common sense demanded that in the building of purchasing power we had to start with agriculture. I knew enough of the problems of the men and women who were partners with the soil to realize the depth of their need back to the farm and the need back to the farm and the need back to the farm.

Increasing parity rolls in the farm equipment and automobile industries in turn are stimulating other lines. Only a few days ago I noted an item in the papers which was very significant. It told of increased activity in the textile mills. One reason, said the newspaper account, was the demand for textiles in the manufacture of automobiles. There you have the complete chain. The cotton growing south, with more money to spend, buys new automobiles. The automobile makers buy more cotton from manufacturers in the northwest and these manufacturers in turn go into the market for more cotton. Goods are moving again, and as goods are moving, so is money moving once more, and as it flows, millions of farm and city families are getting a bigger share of the national income. I think it is safe to say that although prices for farm products show many increases over depression lows, the farm program instead of burdening consumers as a group has actually given them real benefits. There are individuals whose incomes have not risen in proportion to the rise in certain food prices but at the same time the total net income of city dwellers is several billion dollars higher than in 1932, and I think you will agree with me that bargain prices for food in 1932 were little consolation to people in cities with no income whatsoever.

CITY FOOD PRICES. Although food prices in the cities are not on the average as high as they were, for example in 1929, yet they are still higher than in 1932. It is difficult to explain why in many cases if the farmer gets an increase for his food crop over what he got three years ago, the consumer in the city has to pay two and three and four times the amount of that increase. Lifting prices on the farm up to the level of 1929 would not solve the problem. It is the total net income of city dwellers which is opposed chiefly by the few who are profited heavily from the depression. It is they and their henchmen who are doing the best to prevent city people against the farmers and the farm program. It is that type of political profiteer who seeks to discredit the entire farm program by comparing your desire for a fair price for the farmer to the appetite of hogs for corn.

Some of the same type of individual and group are also trying to stir up farmers against other phases of the broad recovery program. Dispensers of discord are saying that the recovery program is a failure. The new reciprocal trade agreement with Canada and are painting pictures of a great flood of imports of farm products rushing across the border. I am confident that the great masses of city people are fair-minded. So I am sure that the great majority of American farmers will join in their judgment of the new trade agreement. If the calamity howlers should happen to be right you have every citizen of the United States in correcting inequalities, but I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right.

SHOW INCREASE. Agriculture, far from being crucified by this agreement, as some have said, is being given a new lease of life. We shall continue to do so, for the very simple reason that the United States with its larger area of agricultural land, its more varied climate and its vastly greater population, has the right to export more agricultural products to Canada than we have imported from her. We shall continue to do so, for the very simple reason that the United States with its larger area of agricultural land, its more varied climate and its vastly greater population, has the right to export more agricultural products to Canada than we have imported from her.

As a first step organized agriculture pointed out that it was necessary to bring agriculture into a fair degree of equality with other parts of our economic life. For so long agriculture remained a dead weight on economic life, sooner or later the entire structure would crash. We used for temporary guides the idea of parity between farm prices and industrial prices. As you know, the figures that we used to determine the degree to which agricultural prices had fallen in relation to other prices were based upon the figures of 1909 to 1914. This was a fairly satisfactory way of measuring our efforts. Those five years represented the beginning of the World War were years of fair prosperity in this country.

They were the last years before the widespread dislocation caused by the World War took place in our economic life. And measured by the figures built upon this standard, the relative purchasing power of the farmer had fallen to less than 50 percent of normal in early 1933. I promised to do what I could to remedy this, and without burdening you with unnecessary figures, let me say that a relative purchasing power of below 50 per cent has now moved up to better than 50 per cent. As I have pointed out, this rise in farm prices has meant a very substantial improvement in the farm income of the United States. The best available figures show that it has increased nearly $3,000,000,000 in the past two and one-half years.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASE NOTED EVERYWHERE. This buying power has been felt in many lines of business outstanding among these is the farm equipment industry in which employment jumped from 27 per cent of the average in October, 1932, to 116 per cent in October, 1935. In the motor car industry, which has found some of its best markets on farms and in small towns, over the same three-year span employment has increased from 42 per cent to 105 per cent. These simple figures show how industrial employment in the cities has been benefited by the improvement in the farmers' condition.

Goods are moving again, and as goods are moving, so is money moving once more, and as it flows, millions of farm and city families are getting a bigger share of the national income. I think it is safe to say that although prices for farm products show many increases over depression lows, the farm program instead of burdening consumers as a group has actually given them real benefits. There are individuals whose incomes have not risen in proportion to the rise in certain food prices but at the same time the total net income of city dwellers is several billion dollars higher than in 1932, and I think you will agree with me that bargain prices for food in 1932 were little consolation to people in cities with no income whatsoever.

Although food prices in the cities are not on the average as high as they were, for example in 1929, yet they are still higher than in 1932. It is difficult to explain why in many cases if the farmer gets an increase for his food crop over what he got three years ago, the consumer in the city has to pay two and three and four times the amount of that increase. Lifting prices on the farm up to the level of 1929 would not solve the problem. It is the total net income of city dwellers which is opposed chiefly by the few who are profited heavily from the depression. It is they and their henchmen who are doing the best to prevent city people against the farmers and the farm program. It is that type of political profiteer who seeks to discredit the entire farm program by comparing your desire for a fair price for the farmer to the appetite of hogs for corn.

Some of the same type of individual and group are also trying to stir up farmers against other phases of the broad recovery program. Dispensers of discord are saying that the recovery program is a failure. The new reciprocal trade agreement with Canada and are painting pictures of a great flood of imports of farm products rushing across the border. I am confident that the great masses of city people are fair-minded. So I am sure that the great majority of American farmers will join in their judgment of the new trade agreement. If the calamity howlers should happen to be right you have every citizen of the United States in correcting inequalities, but I do not believe for a single moment that the calamity howlers are right.

SHOW INCREASE. Agriculture, far from being crucified by this agreement, as some have said, is being given a new lease of life. We shall continue to do so, for the very simple reason that the United States with its larger area of agricultural land, its more varied climate and its vastly greater population, has the right to export more agricultural products to Canada than we have imported from her. We shall continue to do so, for the very simple reason that the United States with its larger area of agricultural land, its more varied climate and its vastly greater population, has the right to export more agricultural products to Canada than we have imported from her.

As a first step organized agriculture pointed out that it was necessary to bring agriculture into a fair degree of equality with other parts of our economic life. For so long agriculture remained a dead weight on economic life, sooner or later the entire structure would crash. We used for temporary guides the idea of parity between farm prices and industrial prices. As you know, the figures that we used to determine the degree to which agricultural prices had fallen in relation to other prices were based upon the figures of 1909 to 1914. This was a fairly satisfactory way of measuring our efforts. Those five years represented the beginning of the World War were years of fair prosperity in this country.

They were the last years before the widespread dislocation caused by the World War took place in our economic life. And measured by the figures built upon this standard, the relative purchasing power of the farmer had fallen to less than 50 percent of normal in early 1933. I promised to do what I could to remedy this, and without burdening you with unnecessary figures, let me say that a relative purchasing power of below 50 per cent has now moved up to better than 50 per cent. As I have pointed out, this rise in farm prices has meant a very substantial improvement in the farm income of the United States. The best available figures show that it has increased nearly $3,000,000,000 in the past two and one-half years.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASE NOTED EVERYWHERE. This buying power has been felt in many lines of business outstanding among these is the farm equipment industry in which employment jumped from 27 per cent of the average in October, 1932, to 116 per cent in October, 1935. In the motor car industry, which has found some of its best markets on farms and in small towns, over the same three-year span employment has increased from 42 per cent to 105 per cent. These simple figures show how industrial employment in the cities has been benefited by the improvement in the farmers' condition.

Increasing parity rolls in the farm equipment and automobile industries in turn are stimulating other lines. Only a few days ago I noted an item in the papers which was very significant. It told of increased activity in the textile mills. One reason, said the newspaper account, was the demand for textiles in the manufacture of automobiles. There you have the complete chain. The cotton growing south, with more money to spend, buys new automobiles. The automobile makers buy more cotton from manufacturers in the northwest and these manufacturers in turn go into the market for more cotton. Goods are moving again, and as goods are moving, so is money moving once more, and as it flows, millions of

Prominent Atlantan's Brother Plans Gorgeous Beaux-Arts Circus Ball

By Sally Forth.

SALLY constantly glows with pride at recounting how Atlanta seems always to be represented in important affairs of the nation! New York's gorgeous Beaux-Arts ball, given last Friday evening at The Waldorf, is the cause of her latest exultation, for did not Kenneth Murchison plan and direct all of its gorgeousness, and did not his sister, Atlanta's own Mrs. Frank Ellis, contribute vastly to this gorgeousness by her presence and her dazzling costume? Mr. Murchison, you know, is Gotham's very most important architect, and he is so well known here, from frequent visits to Mrs. Ellis, that that makes him practically an Atlantan, at least enough for Sally to gloat over him.

Mr. Murchison chose a circus theme for the brilliant ball, with two live elephants performing in the ring to add to the realism. A huge red and white striped canvas transformed the ballroom into a circus tent, with the throne of the Maharajah of Rajput gracing the stage.

Adjoining rooms were decorated as temples, where supper was served throughout the dancing, and the Astor Gallery became the freak tent, housing side shows of all kinds. Some of the guests wore far east costumes and others affected the gay trappings of envoys and visitors to the maharajah's court.

The procession of the maharajah, in the person of Arthur Ware, shortly before midnight began the pageant. Four orchestras played for the ball, and the evening was punctuated with clever floor shows, including magical feats, trapeze acts, Moslem dances, and boxing matches. The circus tent decorations were executed by Cleon Throckmorton, and the murals were done by such eminent artists as Peter Arno, McClelland Barclay, Howard Chandler Christy, James Montgomery Flagg and Neysa McMein.

Mr. and Mrs. Murchison, their daughter, Aurelie, and Mrs. Ellis were among those entertaining at dinner in the Sert room preceding the spectacular affair. The New York Sun, with its colorful account of the ball, carried an attractive photograph of Mrs. Ellis seated at the table with Theodore Thiesing. Her striking costume, that of a princess of India, featured a gold lame bodice worn over full gold lace bloomers. A gold sari veil fell from a crown of diamonds and emeralds to the floor, and her handsome bracelets and rings were studded with diamonds and emeralds.

Mrs. Ellis will return to Atlanta the last of this week. She has enjoyed a perfect whirl of luncheons, dinners, cocktail parties and concerts during her visit in the height of the social season. But most thrilling of all was the "Quartz Arts Night in India," as the ball was called, which, according to her letters, she wouldn't have missed for the world.

ASIDE from the fact that Charles Hanson Towne is duly appreciated as a renowned and distinguished poet, special interest is attached to his visit here because there is a southern angle. His mother, the late Mary Stuart Campbell, was born in Augusta and he first saw the light of day in Louisville, Ky. The jovial bachelor poet has been winned and dined by prominent Atlantans ever since his arrival, and has made the most favorable impression.

Mr. Towne has a friendly manner, a pleasing personality, and, best of all, the poet radiates good humor. He is noted for his wit, his repartee, and for the intriguing way he tells a story. He plays an excellent game of bridge, and is as modest as the proverbial violet when praised for his poetic ability.

When Mrs. S. W. McGonigal entertained for Mr. Towne last Sunday at her Andrews drive home, the poet recited several of his choice compositions with the feeling and charm that completely captivated his attentive listeners. White chrysanthemums and Easter lilies adorned the interior of the home of the charming hostess, and was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Charles Dannals, her sister.

One of the affairs complimenting Mr. Towne today will be the breakfast given by Mrs. W. I. McKenna at Argyle, her country home near Smyrna, and the hostess will feature delicious southern waffles as the "piece de resistance" on her breakfast menu. Assisting Mrs. McKenna will be Mrs. Thompson Samson, the attractive Bostonian who is her guest. Mrs. Samson has the innate charm and cultured voice that immediately identify the true Bostonian.

CAN you imagine walking in to a buffet supper and having your hostess greet you with a trick "buzzer" in her hand? That's exactly what happened at Lamar Peschau's unusual "trick" supper given last evening for Virginia Merry, Sarah Kenan and Sarah's guest, Mary Beery, of Wilmington, N. C. And that wasn't all. No sooner was the ice broken with the buzzer than the dismayed guests drew up chairs, only to have tiny packets explode when they sat down.

After the first excitement of the explosions had died down, some of the more enterprising guests reached for a cigaret to calm their nerves. To their dismay, the cigarettes were loaded, too, and the matches sounded like an airplane in a tailspin. Finally a delicious supper was served, that was quite genuine, and some of the guests requested water. But the glasses were tricky, too, and the faster they tried to gulp the water, the more they spilled upon the floor.

It is quite difficult for a hostess to plan a party that's different from any others the debutantes have attended, but Lamar succeeded in giving a most original and unusual affair. About 15 couples were invited to attend, and after dinner they played games, and completely forgot their dignity for a delightful evening.

WHEN Ellnor Bright became Mrs. Edmund Richardson at a home ceremony last week down in New Orleans, one of her charming attendants was Anne Shoun, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Shoun, of Atlanta.

Adair will entertain at an informal "open house" at 5 o'clock on December 22, at their Peachtree road residence, in compliment to their attractive daughter, Miss Roline Adair, charming member of the sub-deb contingent of society. Miss Adair is a student at Ogontz school at Rydal, Pa., and returns to Atlanta on December 17, to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents. The guest list will be confined to college belles and their escorts, and the social affair will be numbered among the most important events given during the holidays.

Miss Adair is a senior at Ogontz and graduates in 1936. She will make her debut in society in 1937, and will provide the inspiration for much entertaining in her honor. Miss Adair is the representative of influential and prominent Atlanta families.

DEAL PLANS TO PROBE RELIEF BURDEN CAUSES

$12,000,000 Allocated for Research for Guidance of U. S. Policy, Action.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 9.—(AP)—The administration set out today to find through a $12,000,000 research project—how much of the burden of relief comes from displacement of workers by machines.

The research is a PWA project, financed by allotment from the funds of that agency and directed by Corning Gill, assistant PWA administrator. Gill estimated that 24,000 white-collar needy would be required for "the national research project on unemployment opportunities and recent changes in industrial technique."

David Weintraub, formerly an assistant to Gill in the FEPA accounting division, has set up headquarters at Philadelphia. Gill's action followed publication of semi-official figures showing unemployment decreased only 4,000,000 between March, 1933, and September, 1935. The United States Employment Service previously had begun study of the basic requirements of workers in each industry with the hope that improved machinery in one industry may be "siphoned off" to another.

The unemployment report, begun originally for the guidance of President Roosevelt's committee on economic security, listed 15,000,000 unemployment in March, 1933, and nearly 1,000,000 last September.

The research program's $12,000,000 allocation, he said, would be allocated to "several studies as funds are needed." It was impossible, he said, to estimate the time for the study, but indicated an initial report would be within the next 12 months.

INDICTMENT OF BEARD TO BE ASKED OF JURY

Bills of indictment against Dwight Beards, alias R. L. George, alias R. J. Hayes, who is a fugitive from justice, have been drawn for presentation to the November-December term grand jury.

Beard, or George, was charged with three robberies, assault with intent to murder, on two counts, and possession of a pistol.

The bills allege that Beard wound at Patrolman J. E. Sims in a pitched battle on Twelfth street, and that he robbed Mrs. B. Wilson, May's Laundry, cashier, of $32, Robb L. Kuanian, grocer, of $100, and J. T. McConnell, of $147.

Detective Leo Nahlik said yesterday that Beard's capture is expected soon.

RELIGIOUS CULTISTS ON TRIAL IN ARIZONA

Joel Chandler Harris Eulogized By Mrs. Frank Dennis at Club

ing the birthday anniversary of Joel Chandler Harris was held yesterday at the Atlanta Woman's Club under the auspices of the Uncle Remus Memorial Association, of which Mrs. A. McD. Wilson is founder and life director. Mrs. Frank Dennis, of Easton, president of Georgia division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, made the principal address. She told in entertaining language about the life of the immortal author of the folklore stories, who was affiliated with The Atlanta Constitution for many years.

Mrs. Dennis opened her remarks with the tribute paid Joel Chandler Harris in 1915 by the late President Theodore Roosevelt in which he said "The best thing which Joel Chandler Harris has done was to exalt the south in the minds of his readers without casting any reflection upon any other section. No one could read him with out determining to seek out and more equitably solve the problems of the nation. Mr. Harris made of one a better American."

Mrs. Dennis compared the above tribute with the attitude of some of the modern southern writers that hold up the south in distorted pictures. She talked about his boyhood spent in Putnam county, where he was born on December 9, 1848. "He was endowed with little of this world's goods, but the whole kingdom of boyhood lay before him," said Mrs. Dennis.

"Aunt Betsy Cole, a colored fortune teller, who knew all the mysteries of the conjure bag, was among the first influences in his life," said the speaker. Mrs. Dennis told about the life of Joel Chandler Harris at Turnwood, where he learned to type, and of his first writings done for The Constitution, his only newspaper ever published on a southern plantation. She referred to his reputation as a journalist as having been first acquired in Savannah, and of his subsequent connection with The Atlanta Constitution during the regime of Henry W. Grady and Evan P. Howell.

Mrs. Dennis is eminently qualified to pay tribute to Joel Chandler Harris because she has made a study of the life and writings of the southern genius who wrote the famous folklore stories. Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Harris and family, Mr. and Mrs. Evelyn Harris and family, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Camp and family attended the birthday anniversary observation of the immortal writer.

Retiring officers are Mesdames J. Fred Messick, Willard Leach, Arthur McCann, Carl Lewis and Dan Byrd.

FAT GIRLS GET THE GO-BY-SLIM GIRLS WIN MEN

Low Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diet or Back-Breaking, Bending and Rolling Exercises. There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and fat the easy way. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace. Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way. Marmola's Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So why not lose fat the easy way—without starvation diets or back-breaking, bending and rolling exercises? Start the Marmola treatment today that has been used successfully to get rid of excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists.

Bishop, Mrs. Candler Attend State Dinner

Bishop and Mrs. Warren A. Candler leave today for Washington, D. C., where they will be among prominent guests attending the cabinet dinner given tomorrow evening by President and Mrs. Roosevelt at the White House. The official season in the national capital opens on this occasion when the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain the first state function of the season, which honors members of the cabinet and their wives.

The cabinet dinner is a custom from the earliest days of the government, although in post-Revolutionary days it was a midday function, rather than the brilliant and formal affair of the present. As has been the custom for some years, the chief executive and the first lady invite a number of guests to the musical entertainment which always follows the state dinner, and President and Mrs. Roosevelt, adhering to this tradition, always have some brilliant artist or artists to entertain.

At the state dinners there will be two courses, red and white, of a domestic variety. The full glassware purchased for the White House through arrangement of Mrs. Benjamin Harrison will again be in use, or at least a part of the extensive sets.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt are the first White House hosts to serve wines at state dinners since the administration of Woodrow Wilson, and even during that regime came not only the war, but sorrow, illness and the absence of any formal entertaining. After that was the dry era, when Calvin Coolidge banished all refreshments from the evening receptions.

There is such a lot of Rose Bowl talk around our town that we may as well get all the records in print.

This will enable one and all to prove most any sort of argument. One conclusion stands out like a red nose at a dry convention. And that is the south has the greatest average of them all.

The Pacific coast has a tremendous margin over the east and leads the middle west. But the teams of Dixie land—there's another story.

The records of past Rose Bowl games, with tables showing how teams from each region fared in the annual game, follow:

All of which, my dear Colonel, is most gratifying to the land south of the famous old Smith and Wesson line. It tickles our pride. And has us all pulling for the S. M. U. lads to start a table of results all their own with a victory.

S. M. U.'s CHANCES.

It is my understanding that the gamblers around our town are giving Stanford and 13 points. Which strikes me as approaching the acme of daftness.

This Stanford football team, if it is hitting on all six, is quite a football team. It can unload a lot of power all afternoon.

Had the agile Mr. Dixie Howell and the fleet Mr. Don Hutson been removed from the play early in the last Rose Bowl game, I rather imagine the Stanfords would have won handily. Alabama had an awful time stopping that power, and it was only the fact they scored frequently and with precipitate speed which enabled them to outscore the Stanfords.

There were some who believed Alabama to be lucky with passes that day. One may still hear that talked hither and yon. But the facts are the pass combination of Howell and Hutson had a completed pass average in every game they played last season which was practically as good as the Rose Bowl average. That was their usual style.

And as additional substantiation of the argument that Don Hutson was not just lucky that day, may we point out that the young gentleman has caught so many passes in the professional league he is its leading scorer?

Southwestern football must be good. S. M. U. seems to have improved greatly under Matty Bell. But no one knows exactly how good it is.

And unless it has a pass game which clicks—as it may—the Stanfords being a bit dumb—they will lose the game on January 1.

WELL, THIS IS A RECORD!

All tickets of the S. M. U.-Stanford game are sold.

And the most unusual feature of it all is the moan from the management. The sell-out was all by mail and they point out that the extra expense will be several thousand dollars because of having to handle it all by mail in registered letters.

"The fact the ticket sale was not stretched out will cost us a pretty penny," said the management. Which established a new record. It is the first time any management ever moaned about a sell-out.

It looks most peculiar to approach a large stadium and see no booths open selling tickets. Last year at the Alabama-Stanford game, the tickets all were sold days before the game.

And as we walked to the stadium we passed the closed ticket booths. Not a ticket was for sale.

RICHARDS PICKS THEM.

Paul Richards, writing for the Waxahachie (Texas) Daily Light as a sports writer, is a catcher during the baseball season.

He will be wearing the mask and windpad for the Crackers when spring comes around again.

But this past fall, he won some fame out in Texas as a picker of football teams. He called 75 winners out of a possible 80. Which is the best record of the year by any handicapper anywhere.

Richards picked, among others, Notre Dame over Ohio State; Mississippi State over Army; Vanderbilt over Alabama; Duke over North Carolina, and called the actual score of the Rice-T. C. U. game.

So far as the records go, Richards is the first baseball player known who works winters as a sports writer.

'SOLD OUT' SIGN ON ROSE BOWL; SCHOOLS SORRY

84,600 Seats Go in Week, But Method of Sales Costly.

By Paul Zimmerman.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 9.—(P)—Stanford tacked the "sold out" sign on the Rose Bowl gates today.

In one week of feverish buying, without a booth being opened the 84,600 seats for the New Year's football game between Stanford and Southern Methodist were purchased almost before the ink on the tickets was dry.

The unprecedented rush for pastebards will cost the participating schools and the Tournament of Roses committee a pretty penny.

"We would have saved money on the ticket sales," said Don Lieberman, assistant graduate manager of Stanford, "if it had been spread out over a longer period and we had taken the bulk of the money in cash through the windows."

"It always is more expensive to sell tickets by application, and then too, we will have the expense of refunding the money sent us in applications that cannot be filled."

The net returns after the cost of presenting the game and the expenses of the opposing teams have been deducted are split in three equal parts—among the Rose Tournament committee, Stanford and Southern Methodist.

The game between Stanford and Alabama last January 1, which drew the largest crowd in the 20 years of the intercollegiate classic also was a sell-out. The net proceeds amounted to approximately $234,000.

Amazing as was the ticket sale for that game, when offices were closed the day before Christmas, it in no way compared with the present situation. The avalanche of mail really started when Southern Methodist was named a week ago. That speaks well for the Mustang "Aerial Circus."

LAST SUGAR BOWL RESERVES ARE GONE

(UP)—Last of the reserved seats for the Sugar Bowl football game between Louisiana State and Texas Christian University on New Year's Day were sold today. Two thousand admission tickets will go on sale with in two weeks. Temporary seats also are being erected for sale, which will increase the capacity of Tulane stadium to 34,000.

PREPS ORGANIZE BOXING LEAGUE

For the first time, boxing, as conducted among Atlanta's high schools, will be operated under set rules and provisions, following a meeting of officials last night at G. M. A. Among those present were Major Paget, of G. M. A., and Captain Graham, of the Cadet boxing coach; Coach Draper, of Boys' High, and Coach Ward, of Tech High.

A league embracing Boys' High, G. M. A. and Tech High was formed and a schedule arranged whereby each of the teams play the other twice, beginning January 17 with the Cadet-Purple club.

It was decided that A. A. U. rules would be observed to the letter. All bouts will be three rounds, calling for maximum rounds and no extra rounds will be fought, in event of draw decisions. Ten-ounce gloves will be used up to the light-heavy class. Officials of the boxing league view the coming season with a great deal of optimism and confidently expect the most satisfactory campaign of prep boxing yet enjoyed.

Rock Island Teams Win Double-Header

The Rock Island railroad teams of the minor league for boys at Atlanta defeated the Jonesboro Athletic Club teams in Jonesboro. Featuring the circle throw for Rock Island was the fine work of Hess and Webster, both of whom completely throttled the Jonesboro forwards, and Miss Webster was also outstandingly effective. For Jonesboro, Miss Bettell, at center, was by far the star for her team. Miss Kirkland was also very effective. Scores, girls, Rock Island 61, Jonesboro 12; boys, Rock Island 61, Jonesboro 12.

Two of the strongest teams in the Bible Class League, the Bible Class and Glen Echo Clubs, are matched in what should prove to be a very close battle this evening. The race for leadership is pronounced and should culminate in a virtual battle of the home stretch of the second round of play. The Bible Class will bowl Grace Methodist, Four Square Club and Cascade Avenue Methodist are matched. St. Mark's Methodist and Peachtree Christian Altos will meet. C. A. Paine and F. Rhodes make up this heavy-weight combination.

Miss Moon of the Stars, was high for the Rogers Stores ladies' loop, with a 268 three-game total and a high game of 108 Monday afternoon.

Arturoc Dairies will meet another formidable contender in the Sinclair Refining Company five, in the Amateur league, the evening. The Arturoc bowlers jumped into the lead by a three-game win over Pioneer Club last week. However, several teams are bunched near the top and the rivalry should be keener than ever this evening as the eight teams vie for wins.

Dickinson System Gives Grid Crown To S. M. U. Eleven

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 9.—(P)—Southern Methodist University, which meets Stanford in the annual Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., New Year's day, today was ranked as national collegiate football champion under the rating system originated by Dr. Frank B. Dickinson, of the University of Illinois.

Southern Methodist, the first southwestern team to finish at the head of the Dickinson rating, will receive the Knute K. Rockne memorial intercollegiate football trophy.

The Mustangs gained a point rating of 28.01 to beat out Minnesota, winner of the trophy last year. The Gophers had 27.35, with Princeton, the east's outstanding eleven, third at 26.00. Louisiana State University was fourth with 24.03, and Stanford was tied with California for fifth at 23.11.

THE RATINGS.

	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Southern Methodist	12	0	0	28.01
Minnesota	8	0	0	27.35
Princeton	9	0	1	26.00
Louisiana State	9	1	1	24.03
Stanford	7	1	0	23.11
California	9	1	1	23.11
Ohio State	10	1	0	22.01
South Carolina	7	1	1	21.66
Notre Dame	6	2	0	21.66
California (Los Angeles)	6	2	0	20.89
Fordham	6	1	2	20.89

One revision in the final standings is possible, according to Dr. Dickinson. If Mary's defeat of Dickinson, Ill., Saturday, had moved up to tenth position and Northwestern will rank eleventh with 20.21 points.

Previous winners of the title under the system, in order starting with 1924: Notre Dame, Dartmouth, Stanford, Illinois, Southern California, Notre Dame, Southern California, Michigan, Michigan and Minnesota.

Fight on Olympics Gets Second Wind

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(P)—Fresh breezes today from the rival athletic camps, marked by charges and counter-charges of "bad faith," disclosed one of the most interesting aspects of the Olympic movement. The American Olympic committee, which is the Amateur Athletic Union's checkbook, is being fully represented in the games.

Meanwhile, bitterness aroused during the two-day convention fight with the A. A. U. was increasingly in evidence. Non-participationists prepared to continue the fight under the leadership of McEvoy, who denounced the methods by which all boycott moves were beaten off on a roll-call vote and hurled the word "liar" at Brundage.

Rudolph Scores Win As Cue Meet Opens

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(P)—Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, former champion, defeated Marcel Camp, of Detroit, in the opening match of the world championship pocket billiard tournament tonight by a score of 125 to 23 in 16 innings.

The match, played on the new claret-purple table surface and with solid-colored balls, innovations this season, saw Rudolph exert almost complete mastery over his younger opponent. The Cleveland veteran was in almost perfect stroke after the seventh frame, reaching his top form in a high run of 65 in the ninth inning.

Dixie Howell, Bride Hurt in Auto Mishap

MONTERREY, Mexico, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Dixie Howell, former Alabama football star, and his bride of two weeks, Peggy Waters, actresses, were slightly injured in an automobile accident today on the Pan-American highway, 30 miles south of here.

A companion, Lamar Williams, of Pine Bluff, Ark., suffered a broken leg.

The party was en route to the United States from Mexico City in Howell's coupe. He was driving when a rear tire blew out and the car overturned three times.

Howell escaped with a cut lip and Mrs. Howell received bad bruises on her head. Williams, a former Howard College football player, was thrown from the car against a large rock.

Howell and his wife will delay their trip to his home, Hartford, Ala., until Williams is released from the hospital in about three weeks.

OLE MISS WIRES ITS ACCEPTANCE TO ORANGE BOWL

Postmaster Farley To Lead Catholic U. Delegation to Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 9.—(UP)—Miami's Orange Bowl committee tonight successfully completed its quest for a team to oppose Catholic University in a New Year's Day game here.

Mississippi University officials telegraphed W. Keith Phillips, chairman of the selection committee, accepting an invitation to represent Dixie in the north-south post-season game.

Catholic University, of Washington, previously had accepted an invitation to represent the north.

ASKS APPROVAL.

Mississippi, "Ole Miss" in southern sports parlance, made its acceptance contingent on willingness of the Southeastern football conference to waive the rules against post-season games.

The message to Phillips, signed by Coach Ed Walker, of Ole Miss, said: "We accept the invitation to participate in the Orange Bowl game, subject to approval of the Southeastern conference." The telegram added that such approval already had been asked.

Phillips said Governor Dave Sholtz, of Florida, has asked Dr. John J. Tigert, head of Southeastern conference governors, to allow Ole Miss to carry the colors of the south in the second annual Orange Bowl contest.

Committeemen again were certain conference approval would be forthcoming.

"TOO MUCH MONEY."

Mississippi's acceptance pulled the Orange game out of a dilemma which developed when Vanderbilt, and Auburn refused invitations. Vanderbilt, first choice, followed its long-standing policy of hard work in classes for football men out of season. Auburn asked $10,000, about twice as much as Miami offered, and would not come to terms.

Catholic University accepted the bid to represent the north immediately after it was proffered and began plans to send a heavy delegation here to support the team. Postmaster-General James A. Farley probably will lead the delegation from Washington.

Ole Miss this year went through one of its most successful gridiron seasons in years. The record—Victories: 20-0; Ties: 1-0; Defeats: 2-0. Southwest: 33-0 over Sewanee; 27-0 over Florida; 21-7 over St. Louis; 26-0 over Centre; 6-0 over Centenary; 14-0 over Mississippi State; 7-33 to Marquette; 13-14 to Tennessee.

ON THE SPOT.

The Bowl selectors yesterday found themselves somewhat on a spot in lack of an opponent for Catholic University. North Carolina's Tarheels and Duke were under consideration when Judge Wayne Allen put in an "old advice" suggestion of Ole Miss.

The committee immediately put them on the "feeler" list and were "pleased today to announce their acceptance."

Ole Miss and Catholic University, according to records, should be about evenly matched, with Ole Miss holding a slight edge.

Ed Walker's team suffered out two defeats, both to ranking teams. Powerful Marquette rolled them in the team of the 1935 season, 23-7, and Tennessee crashed through in the last quarter to emerge a one-point conversion victor.

Ole Miss stopped Mississippi State, 1935 season with one defeat. De Paul took the capital team, 9-6.

Association Heads Will Gather Today

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(P)—American association club owners meet in Chicago tomorrow to elect a successor to Thomas Jefferson Hickey as league president and manager of the "Little World Series" with the International league.

Lou McEvoy, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, was the leading candidate for the presidency although there were reports he had lost much of his support and that Bill Evans, former International manager of the Cleveland Indians, had an excellent chance of landing the job with a three-year contract at $12,500 a year. Ed Shave, Minneapolis sports writer, also was in the running.

Coach Allen introduced the players, as follows: Centers, Red Collins, Charley Preston and R. E. Hood; guards, Squatty Glendinning, Eddie Carmack, Fulton Brittain, John Wilcox and Mit Fitzsimmons; tackles, Jim Morgan, Oscar Thompson and Ed Jones; backs, Fletcher Sims, Harry Appleby, Dick Beard, Lawrence Hays, Dutch (Ole Coon) Konecman, Ernest Tharpe, Billy Street, John Raine, Jimmy Moore and Scrappy Edwards.

THE PRESENTS.

At each plate there was a present. They Rhodes Purdue stood and announced there were more presents. Names were pulled out of hats and extra gifts were presented.

Mit Fitzsimmons and Dick Beard received radios. Captain Eubanks and Hoot Gibson got traveling bags. There was, as said, something worthwhile for every player.

A mock broadcast of a football game between a slippery soap eleven and Georgia Tech ended the luncheon. Tech won this game, too.

It was a great day for the Gold and White.

Other coaches presented included Bobby Dodd, backfield; Mack Tharpe, line; Joe Westbrook, freshman; Roy Mundorff, basketball, and George Griffin, track. Willie Rossmund, senior student manager, was introduced.

MORE PASSING.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(UP)—The National Professional Football league saw an increased use of the forward pass during the 1935 campaign, according to final team statistics released today. A total of 1,627 passes were thrown with 554 completed.

Dempsey Rates Georgian High

Joe Lipps, of Ty Ty, Ga., is shown above in a fighting pose. He is fighting in New York and Jack Dempsey, who is one of his managers, insists he is the pick of the new crop of heavyweights being groomed to fight Joe Louis for the title, if and when he wins it. Lipps, according to Dempsey, is about a year away and must lose and win a few fights this winter to get experience. Sam Sobel, of Atlanta, "discovered" Lipps and took him to New York and the boy's fighting impressed Dempsey so much he bought part of the Georgian's contract. He has won two fights in New York.

Tech Varsity Honored At Rotary Luncheon

Delightful Banquet Enjoyed by Squad; Presents Distributed at Each Plate.

By Jack Troy.

It looked like moving day for the Georgia Tech varsity players as they trooped out from the annual Rotary banquet at the Capital City Club yesterday afternoon.

Some carried new traveling bags and others had radios. All bore some useful gift, representing the gesture of a great group of men to a great group of younger men.

It was a thoroughly delightful banquet. Ferd Kaufmann, who will never be a fugitive from a chain gang—that is, that chain gang associated with Tech's out-of-town games—arranged a very fine program for the Rotary Club and served as toastmaster.

Kaufmann, who is always close with the boys and has a pretty good idea what they like, limited the speeches. He called on Bill Glenn to tell the boys something about the annual Rotary luncheon. Mr. Glenn told the varsity players they were always welcome. "Regardless of your record, your efforts will always be praised," he said.

HE FEW TECH MEN.

He pointed out that the Rotary organization included but few Tech men. "There are alumni here from schools all over the nation. But they all welcome you with the spirit of we Tech men."

All this came, of course, following the splendid luncheon. During that period there was no talk of Tech. It was a time of old-fashioned eating as only hungry football players can eat.

RING SLAUGHTER FRIDAY TO DRAW GREAT TURNOUT

Nearly 19,000 Will Pay $150,000 To See Louis Maul Basque.

NEW YORK, Dec. 9.—(UP)—The sports world will be treated to a truly amazing spectacle Friday night—a $150,000 sell-out of Madison Square Garden for a fight in which one of the principals generally is accorded about as much chance as a steer in a slaughter house.

A capacity crowd of approximately 18,000 spectators is virtually assured for the Joe Louis-Paulino Uzcudun 15-rounder. Promoter Mike Jacobs, of the 20th Century Club, said tonight.

The fifth largest indoor gate in the history of boxing is practically assured for a fight in which an old man of the ring, 36-year-old Paulino, of Spain, will be thrown in with Detroit's youthful Brownie Broomfield, most brilliant and deadly leather tapper since the peak days of the great Jack Dempsey.

It will be a gala night. All the big shots, brass hats and Park Avenue dollops will be on hand—occupying choice seats at $15 each. The Garden is sealed from $2 to $15.

If even Stephen competition is the lifeblood of sport, as the sages have insisted down the years, and if it is the uncertainty of an encounter's outcome that captivates the fans—why will the turnstiles hum to the tune of $150,000 Friday night?

Apparently the fans are going for the sole reason of seeing how long the ancient Basque Woodchopper can remain on his feet—how long he can weather the thrusts and smashes of the Tan Torador. As for a Paulino victory, well—the platinum-toothed bearclaw from the Pyrenees isn't accorded as much chance as a ring bull. There is virtually no betting on Uzcudun to win, but the odds apparently are about 7-1 against him. He is even the underdog at 2-1 that he will last out the 15 rounds.

O'MAHONEY WINS.
MONTREAL, Dec. 9.—(UP)—Danno O'Mahoney, 218, Ireland, tonight defeated Ed (Strangler) Lewis, 225, Ithaca, N. Y., in straight falls in the main bout of a forum wrestling card.

O'Mahoney was awarded the first fall after 22 minutes when Lewis was disqualified for roughing. He took the second with an "Irish whip" in three minutes.

First Cracker To Sign Contract

Paul Richards, the new Cracker catcher obtained from the Philadelphia Athletics in a trade for Almon Williams, pitcher, is shown above. His signed contract reached the Atlanta baseball office yesterday. A former performer with the Browns, Dodgers, Giants and Athletics, Richards is expected to help the Crackers to another pennant. He is the first player to sign a 1936 contract.

Richards First Cracker To Sign 1936 Contract

Earl Mann Receives Signature With Fond Greeting; Nap Rucker First Discovered Paul.

By Ralph McGill.

Paul Richards, the sports writer from Waxahachie, Texas, who will catch for those pennant-winning Crackers of our next season, is the first player to sign a 1936 contract.

He arrived yesterday afternoon at the Atlanta baseball office and was accorded a fond greeting by President Earl Mann and Manager Eddie Moore.

Richards is completely satisfied with his contract and comes to Atlanta ready to go and minus any handicapping disappointment at being dropped from the major leagues. He comes to the Crackers from Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics where he caught almost half of last season's games. He previously had played with the Giants and Brooklyn.

Nap Rucker signed Richards as an infielder while he was in high school. He escaped from the Dodgers because of failure to file option papers and the Browns had him but the Dodgers purchased him. He played first base, third base and shortstop in the Western association before going back to the Dodgers.

To make his record all the more remarkable he appeared in 10 games as a pitcher winning two and losing none.

WITH DODGERS.
The Dodgers had him back in 1928 and he was farmed out to Macon and Hartford, at that time, Brooklyn farms. Earl Mann was an official of each club, going from Macon to Hartford, and Richards helped him win two pennants.

It was at Macon that he became a catcher. He served in 1932 with Minneapolis, where he had a great year, batting .351 and hitting 16 home runs.

Bill Terry bought him for the Giants in 1933 and he did some catching. He was catching Carl Hubbell when that pitcher set a record for scoreless innings.

He was sold to the Athletics last May and did about half the catching. Because of almost two years of reserve work his hitting suffered. He batted .250 last year.

BETTER THAN 300.
Richards is confident he will hit better than 300 when working regularly with the Crackers. Earl Mann expects him to be a real factor in the 1936 drive in defense of the 1935 championship.

During the winter Richards is a sports writer, working for the Waxahachie Daily Light. He is something of a football expert and had a great record picking winners during the past fall.

Other Cracker contracts are expected in during the month. Earl Mann is something of a genius at getting the boys to sign on the well-known dotted line.

SOUTHWESTERN, FURMAN QUIT ATHLETIC BODY

Petrels To Play Alabama, Navy and Other Fine Teams in Basketball.

By Jack Troy.

Oglethorpe University today is again a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association. The Stormy Petrel school was reinstated to membership at the annual meeting at Birmingham yesterday. Southwestern and Furman withdrew.

The announcement is interpreted to mean that after more than five years of playing an independent role among southern colleges, the Stormy Petrels will come storming back to take their rightful place in Dixie athletics.

There will be a better opportunity to schedule ranking opponents in all sports and to attract a larger number of athletes.

It is a decided break for the coaches and for the school, too. Many schools refused to schedule Oglethorpe during the past few years because of its non-affiliation with any athletic association. Some even went so far as to cancel games already scheduled.

OLD LAURELS.
Now the Stormy Petrels can go ahead and have a better than even chance to regain their rightful place in southern intercollegiate sports.

Coincidentally with the announcement yesterday was the release of the Petrel basketball schedule by Coach Jack Overton.

It is probably the greatest game schedule a Petrel team ever undertook. There are road games with Mississippi State, Alabama, Davis Elkins, Salem College, Duquesne, Goodyear, at Akron; Brooklyn Central Y. Long Island University, Brooklyn; George Washington, Dickinson College, Penn State Teachers, John Marshall, St. Thomas, Dana College, Roanoke and Navy.

EARLY S. E. C. FOES.
Oglethorpe gets the jump on other state schools, playing two games against Mississippi State at Starkville, Wednesday and Thursday of next week, and following with Alabama on Friday.

The team will return home and engage in daily practices until the day after Christmas. The gala eastern trip will begin that day.

COPELAND AT FORWARD.
Ed Copeland, six-foot-three and one-half inch center who scored more than 800 points last season, will return to play forward. Other returning players include Hoyt Farmer, Sully Sullivan, Buster Fisher and Cecil Moon.

The latter is six foot, two. Newcomers include James (Dixie) Dean, six-foot-four, a center; Mosely, six-foot-two and a half; Archer, a guard, six-foot-three; Tubby Thompson, Doyle and Ben Finkner, six-foot-two.

The Petrels will be rangy, excellent floor workers and very strong offensively. A defense which is the main item of concern, the Petrels are sure to score plenty of points.

Coach Overton is planning other games, but they are only in the tentative stage. The team will be played at Chambliss, according to present plans.

GEORGIA PEACH.
To excel was his dominating desire, and he never wasted a chance to further his aim. Though only a mediocre pitcher, he feared no rival, and though he might get the worst of it, he was always back for more.

Upsetting infielders, driving pitchers and catchers wild, fiercely attacking umpires, even leaping into the stands occasionally to battle with fans who razzed him. Cobb left brilliant memories to the fans who saw him.

The "Georgia Peach" has lived in Redwood City, Cal., since his retirement from the game in 1928.

Carnera Kayoes George Brackey

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 9.—(UP)—Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champion, advanced another step on the comeback trail tonight by scoring a fourth round technical knockout victory over George (Big Boy) Brackey of Buffalo. The bout was scheduled for 10 rounds.

The Buffalo youngster was no match for the ex-champion. After he had been floored once in the fourth for a nine count, his handlers threw in the towel just as the referee was about to begin counting a second knockdown.

Carnera weighed 269 1/2 and Brackey 208.

DUDLEY BREAKS PAR AT ORLANDO

SARASOTA, Fla., Dec. 9.—(AP)—A sensational 67, four under par, gave Alvin Krueger, of Beloit, Wis., the lead in the first round of the $2,000 Sarasota open golf tournament today amid a low-scoring orgy.

Twenty-two of the 127 pros and amateurs shooting in the second event of the winter tour smashed conventional figures and 13 others finished with par 71 and back in 33. Krueger needed every birdie for a one-stroke edge over Victor Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J.; Johnny Revolta, the Professional Golf Association champion from Milwaukee; and Zell Eaton, of Oklahoma City, who turned pro last week in time to win $105 in the Orlando open.

Eaton and Revolta each had an even 34-34; but Ghezzi touched off the fireworks coming home with a 32, lowest nine of the day, to take his place close behind the leader.

Two amateurs, smacked their way into the select circle carding 69s. They were Willis Hudlin, major league pitcher for the Cleveland Indians, and Morton McCarthy, of Norfolk, Va.

Professionals finishing two less than par over the Bobby Jones Club course were Wild Bill Mehlhorn, of Louisville, Ky.; Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga.; Craig Wood, of New York; Ray Raynor, of Woodbury, N. C.; Jack Tomer, of Asheville, N. C.; John Bulla, of Lockport, Ill.; and Herman Keiser, of Springfield, Mo.

Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, who tied Revolta for first place in the Orlando tournament and beat the P. G. A. titleholder in the playoff, needed a 73 today. The same score placed Sam Parks Jr., of Pittsburgh, national open champion, far back in the field.

Georgia's other two entered golfers made their presence known. Jim Cochran, of Rome, went out in 40 and came in with a 39 to show a 79. Atlanta's entry, Harold Sargent, finished with a 73, as a result of his 37-36.

FOXX, MARCUM, M'NAIR, CRAMER SOLD--REPORT

Mack Gets $300,000 and Two Players, According to Rumor.

CHICAGO, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The New York Giants early today announced that Pitches LeRoy Parmelee and Allyn Stout, Outfielder Phil Weintraub and Second Baseman Al Cucinello have been traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Second Baseman Burgess Whitehead.

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—(AP)—Trade winds, reaching gale-like proportions, all but blew the veteran Connie Mack into hiding tonight as major leaguers opened their annual big league player mart.

Connie, worn out and hoarse after denying at least a score of reports as to the disposition of his outstanding stars, hid for a while in the big hotel thirties to straighten out the Boston and then came out boldly to announce he had nothing to say.

The latest and apparently best report involving the Grand Patriarch of the Athletics was that he already had completed the sale of Jimmy Foxx, Eric McNair, Roger Cramer and Johnny Marcum to the Boston Red Sox for $300,000 in greenbacks. Pitches Jim Welch, Outfielder Carl Reynolds and possibly Infielder Bill Werber.

Other reports had approximately the same players leaving Philadelphia, but a varying assortment of vets and rookies from Boston in the deal. The rumor that Foxx would wear White Sox regalia next season seemed definitely blasted.

OVERTIME WORK.
While club owners and their managers circulated around and attempted to swap a dozen buttons for star players, National leaguers worked overtime in the clubhouse to straighten out the Boston situation. President Ford Frick intimated that Charles Francis Adams would re-purchase the club, now league property, and install Bob Quinn, present Brooklyn general manager, as president in full charge. The financial reorganization plan will be submitted at the league meeting tomorrow.

That the St. Louis syndicate headed by George Sisler had given up its plan to purchase the Browns from the estate of Phil Ruffalo occasioned no surprise among baseball men. Sisler and his associates didn't have near enough money to swing the half-million dollar deal, was the general belief.

SIMMONS DEAL.
Another long reported player deal, involving the efforts of the Chicago White Sox to peddle Outfielder Al Simmons to Detroit, came closer to completion although both sides still were at loggerheads. The White Sox demanded cash, reported to be $50,000, and Outfielder Gerald Walker. Manager Mickey Cochrane said the Tigers would not trade Walker, whom he expects to use as a regular next season. However, there isn't much doubt that Simmons will go to Detroit.

The New York Yankee delegation admitted it hoped to do some trading with Outfielder Ben Chapman, Pitcher Johnny Allen and Tony Lazzeri as bait, although Manager Joe McCarthy insisted he would keep "Poosh 'Em Up' Tony.

THE SCHEDULE.
